BOMBERS BOOSTED

...LeMay Wants Mixed Force

Washington (AP) — Air Force Gen. Curtis E. LeMay told senators Thursday that the "manned bomber is still the dominant long-range weapons system" even though the Soviets now stress ballistic missiles.

And to meet the expanding Soviet military threat, the general said this nation must maintain "a collective strength of mixed forces, manned and missile."

In somewhat more forthright terms he seconded a cautious appeal from secretary of the Air Force Eugene M. Zuckert for continued development of manned aircraft.

LeMay testified with Zuckert in a closed-door hearing of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

The Committee is considering the Air Force share of the new $55 billion defense budget. Censored versions of prepared testimony were given to newsmen.

LeMay stated the opinion that overpowering U.S. nuclear and air strength and an obvious determination to use it is necessary, forced removal of Soviet missiles and bombers from Cuba last October.

He said the United States must be able to destroy not only enemy cities but enemy military force, if a general or nuclear war develops.

"As you know," he told the committee, "it doesn't take much of a nuclear force to destroy a large number of enemy cities. But the destruction of cities per se does not protect U.S. and Allied lives."

Obvious

LeMay's obvious point was that a manned strategic system able to make selective and repeated penetrations is necessary to maintain deterrent power.

"The Air Force is in the highest state of peacetime readiness in its history," Zuckert told the committee, and then added:

"Beyond the immediate future, the picture is not as clear as we would like it to be."

Tactfully avoiding a head-on clash with the administration's policy of emphasis upon long-range missiles and restrictions on future manned bombers and fighters, Zuckert made these points:

1. Production of present long-range jet bombers and tankers is ending and long-range planning requires alternatives.

2. "Complications in the planning and employment of an all-missile strategic system."

3. "Uncertainties as to the course of development of military activity in space."

Zuckert said this country must build "a defense capability in space" which could deny "to a hostile power the uninhibited military exploitation of space," and provide "a system of protection for U.S. scientific activities in space."

B47 Pilot Sacrifices Self

. . . MAJOR DIES AS OTHERS PARACHUTE TO SAFETY

A veteran Air Force pilot was credited Thursday with sacrificing himself to save the lives of others.

Maj. N. V. Meeks was killed when his B47 Stratojet bomber crashed into the side of a hill southeast of Raymond, soon after taking off from Lincoln Air Force Base Thursday morning.

The 40-year-old major's body was found strapped in his ejection seat, in a corn field almost a mile from the main crash scene.

Three other officers aboard the plane parachuted to safety, and were listed in good condition at the LAFB hospital where they are being held for observation.

They are:

First Lt. Larry Talovich, 27, of 3300 No. 56th, whose hometown is Thermopolis, Wyo. He was the co-pilot.

Capt. Clifford Dale Cork, 29, of 4244 Hamilton, the navigator and a native of Springview, Neb.

Capt. Arthur V. Ingle, 30, of 1200 Scenic Lane, a Methuen, Mass., native.

Maj. Meeks, who lived at 300 Bruce Drive, is survived by his wife, Ruth, and 3 daughters, Barbara Jean, 9, Terry Leigh, 3, and Elizabeth Ann, 2. He was a native of Benson, Ariz.

Tail Burning

Air Force officials said the tail of the B47 was on fire as it left the runway, and that the pilot gained sufficient altitude to allow the others to parachute.

Apparently, however, the huge 6-jet bomber was not high enough when Maj. Meeks ejected for him to do so safely.

One nearby resident expressed the opinion that the pilot may have remained with the plane after the others ejected, in an effort to avoid hitting houses.

MAJ. N. V. MEEKS

Mrs. Pauline Lindholm said the burning wreckage was "too close for comfort" to her home, and added that "I feel that the man (Maj. Meeks) might have stayed with the plane in order to keep from hitting us."

The safety of those on the ground also was uppermost in the minds of the surviving officers.

The burning plane went over the farm home of Robert Flader and one of the parachuting men landed in his yard.

"The first thing he wanted to know," Flader said, "was, 'Did we get (hit) a house?'

'Thank God'

"I told him 'No' and he said 'Thank God for that.' "

The wreckage of the jet bomber was scattered over a half-mile area, landing mostly on the Clarence Jacobsen farm where a hayfield caught fire.

Jacobsen reported that about 80 acres of his land had been roped off by LAFB officials investigating the crash, and that the impact of the giant craft had shaken the farm buildings but caused no major damage.

Earl Bool, 34-year-old farmer, gave an eyewitness account of the split-second action which preceded the crash: "I saw the tail section of the plane seem to explode and fall off, and then two parachutes opened, and later a third." The remainder of the aircraft, he related, skidded for some distance, scattering parts and leaving flame and smoke in its wake.

Pieces Falling

Merrill Cook said he and Rod Hopkins were driving parallel to the plane's path and saw the bottom of the plane's fuselage afire at the rear, and then observed pieces falling from it.

Cook said he saw 3 men parachute from the plane and that Hopkins saw Maj. Meeks eject, and that his chute failed to open.

Capt. Cork was dragged almost a half-mile through a plowed field as the wind blew his chute before Cook and Hopkins were able to reach him, Cook said.

Capt. Ingle's chute became entangled in trees and a fence when he landed, Cook said, but he was able to free himself and came running to Cork's aid.

Helicopters rushed to the scene and took the three survivors to the LAFB Hospital.

LAFB officials combed the area and found portions of the aircraft strung over a distance of ½ mile.

Bits of the fuselage, gas tanks, radios, motors and wings were scattered, some lying on the surface of the snow and mud, some gouged deep into the earth.

A rotor, apparently from one of the motors, stood straight up marking the location of the mishap.

The enormous landing wheels were found almost ¼ mile apart.

LAFB officials said the plane was on a training flight, with no specific destination, and carried no atomic weapons.

Base Jets 'Still As Good As New'

Despite 4 fatal crashes of Lincoln Air Force Base B47s since the first of the year, base officials said Thursday that each B47 being used by the base is "as good as a new one would be if they were still building B47s."

Some of Strategic Air Command's B47s are being replaced by B58s, but none are being replaced at LAFB. The plane has not been manufactured for several years.

However, terms such as "obsolete" used in connection with B47s do not mean the planes are "worn out," LAFB says, but rather that newer aircraft incorporate features developed after the B47.

Replace Bad Parts

However, base spokesmen said, any part on a B47 that is not functioning properly is replaced—either when functioning does not measure up to standards or at periodic maintenance checks, in which all parts of each plane are checked several times a year.

Said one spokesman: "It's like an automobile. If the body is good you can replace the engine, the wheels, the transmission, or whatever isn't working right. You still have a good car if all the parts are working right."

"If the planes weren't OK, the crews wouldn't go up in them," the spokesman said.

Any man who requests a transfer because he doesn't think the plane is in proper condition "will be pulled off," he said.

7th Fatality

Thursday's death of a B47 pilot was the seventh fatality in the 4 crashes this year.

All 4 aboard died in the crash of an LAFB jet bomber in southern Minnesota Feb. 20.

One crewman was killed and 3 parachuted to safety when an LAFB bomber crashed in England Feb. 6, and one was killed and two injured Jan. 11 when a base B47 exploded during takeoff from McConnell Air Force Base in Wichita, Kan.

Chuckhole Fixup Job May Start

Paving repair crews will begin hot-patching the chuckholes Friday if no more moisture develops, City Paving Supt. Lyle Gieseker said Thursday.

Gieseker said 3 small crews would begin on O from 9th to 27th, No. 48th and also So. 48th and So. 9th.

These arterial streets have developed the most chuckholes, the superintendent said.

'Good Weather'

"We'll begin on these and work on other streets as long as the good weather holds."

Gieseker said paving breakup this year "is less than other years."

This he attributed to weather conditions this year as well as the miles of arterial resurfacing that have been completed during the past 5 years under the 10-year street improvement program.

THE WEATHER

LINCOLN: Partly cloudy Friday. High in lower 40s.

EAST AND CENTRAL NEBRASKA: Partly cloudy central and mostly cloudy east Friday with occasional light snow likely extreme northeast. Highs in 40s.

New Trade School Bill To Unicam

A bill which, in its amended form, would require the establishment of a second state trade school in Nebraska was advanced to the floor of the Legislature Thursday by the Education Committee.

Action came on a 4-0 vote after the committee first considered on a 5-1 count authorizing a legislative resolution to the same effect.

The measure, LB181, amended to serve as a vehicle for the committee's decision, provides that a second school shall be established "within two years of the effective date of this act."

Set Site Later

Site for the school would be determined by the Legislature later, presumably in its 1965 session. A Legislative Council study of trade school needs is to be undertaken in the interim.

After advancing LB181, the committee killed all other trade school bills on a 6-0 vote.

Included were LB28, Grand Island; LB45, Sidney; LB177, O'Neill; LB697, Ogallala, and LB484, authorizing junior colleges to establish vocational technical training with state aid.

LB181 originally called for establishing a trade school west of North Platte. The bill was amended to stipulate the Education Committee as its new sponsor.

Nebraska's only present state-supported trade school is located at Milford.

Med College Growth Dies

. . . COMMITTEE DROPS LEVY

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

An amended bill which would abolish the building fund levy for the University of Nebraska College of Medicine and University Hospital was dispatched Thursday to the floor of the Legislature.

Acting with obvious dismay and some reluctance, members of the Revenue Committee voted 4-2 to eliminate the levy altogether, then advanced the bill on a 5-2 count.

The measure, LB26, had previously been amended in committee to boost the present .25 mill levy to a full mill in 1964 and 1965, and .50 mill thereafter until 1970.

'Great Disappointment'

Informed of the committee's action, NU Board of Regents President Dr. B. N. Greenberg of York said he is "greatly disappointed."

Noting that "the need for medical college construction is critical," Greenberg said he is "hopeful that the Legislature will in some degree implement the development program."

Proposed improvements in the college's deteriorating physical plant are "vitally important at this time," he declared.

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, who sponsored LB26 in an effort to provide funds for the university's building program at the Omaha campus, said the action "puts the issue squarely in the lap of the Nebraska Medical Association."

Doctors "brought about the dissension and confusion," he noted. "It is an internal fight among them."

At issue is a conflict among doctors as to whether the university should construct a new 300-bed hospital, as planned, or expand and modernize its present facilities.

Bill In Jeopardy

Warning that the conflict was jeopardizing passage of the bill, Carpenter announced earlier this week that he would move to eliminate the levy altogether.

If the levy is abolished, Carpenter told newsmen, the university "can go before the Budget Committee to justify its needs. I am sure it will give them what they are entitled to."

Any recommendations by that committee would be included in its proposed appropriations bill which would then be considered by the Legislature.

The Revenue Committee's action was taken with "the best interests of medicine in mind," Carpenter said.

The .25 mill levy has produced nearly $7.5 million since it was instituted in 1953.

In other action, the committee heard and advanced on a 7-0 count LB555, providing a new method of collecting motor fuel taxes from interstate motor vehicle operators, effective Jan. 4, 1964.

State Agriculture Director Pearle Finigan said that if a companion measure, LB441, is also passed, then LB555 will increase the amount of collection and reduce costs of administration between $400,000 and $500,000.

LB441 would eliminate ports of entry.

LB555 provides that interstate motor carriers pay fuel taxes in Nebraska only on the amount of fuel used on Nebraska highways.

Heard and held pending disposition of LB555 was a similar measure, LB171.

Bigger Plans For Campus Knocked Out

Omaha (AP)—The dean of the University of Nebraska College of Medicine said Thursday the school has abandoned plans to extend the medical campus in the face of growing opposition.

A group of Omaha doctors associated with the university challenged plans to build a new hospital at the university. Wednesday the Legislature's Budget Committee visited the Omaha campus for a first-hand look at the situation.

"Under the circumstances prevailing after the meeting Wednesday with the Budget Committee," said Dr. J. Perry Tollman, dean of the college, "we decided that immediate plans for campus development should be confined to the present campus."

The new hospital proposed by the university would have been built on land east of the campus.

THOUSANDS WANT TO FLEE RED CUBA

Washington (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Thursday "several hundred thousands" of Cubans have indicated their desire to flee the Red-ruled island.

But of more immediate concern to the United States are the thousands of Latin Americans who want to get into Cuba so they can learn the ways of subversion and guerrilla warfare and take their lessons back home.

President Kennedy is expected to stress this problem at his March 18-20 meeting with the presidents of 6 Central American republics in Costa Rica.

Rusk said of the current situation under the rule of Fidel Castro:

"The economic situation is grim. There is evidence of great and growing discontent on that island."

Speaking on a taped AFL-CIO radio interview program, the secretary of state did not disclose the basis for his claim that several hundred thousands have indicated a desire to leave Cuba. But he noted:

"The fact that a couple of hundred of thousands of Cubans have given up all their material possessions and left Cuba to seek freedom abroad since the beginning of this present regime would indicate that Cuba is not a satisfactory place to live now . . ."

Castro has imposed increasingly strict restraints on emigration and many of the refugees who have reached the United States have had to resort to perilous flight in small boats.

Rusk spoke particularly of Cuba's agricultural plight and said that "from a relatively prosperous economy . . . Cuba's has dropped to a typical (Soviet) satellite economy of the sort that we have seen in East Germany, North Viet Nam and other places."

British Embassy Employe Accuses Soviets Of Trying To Blackmail Him

London (AP)—The Russians were accused Thursday night of trying to blackmail a British Embassy employe in Moscow into spying.

A foreign office spokesman said Soviet intelligence agents approached Ivor Rowsell, 47, embassy transport officer, 12 days ago and threatened to disclose what they called an incident in his private life unless he worked for the Soviet Union. No further details were given.

Rowsell reported the approach to Ambassador Sir Humphrey Trevelyan and was sent back to London. The spokesman said Rowsell and his wife were sent home in their own and general interest.

March 1962

Rowsell went to Moscow in March 1962. His official duties included drawing up the roster of embassy drivers and maintenance of transport.

Asked what help he might have been to the Russians, the foreign office spokesman said "anyone who is employed at the British Embassy is a target for the Russian intelligence service."

In Moscow, the British Embassy said Rowsell left the Soviet capital on short notice. He was believed to have left last Friday.

No Connection

An embassy spokesman said Rowsell was not connected with the case of Greville Wynne, a British businessman awaiting trial in Moscow on spy charges.

The announcement recalled the case of William John Vassall, a British admiralty clerk convicted last October of spying for the Soviets.

Vassall testified at his trial that while he was an employe of the British Embassy in Moscow in 1955 and 1956, Soviet agents got him drunk and then took photographs of him in compromising homosexual postures.

Threat

Vassall said that by threat of exposure the Soviets continued to force him to work for them after his return to London in 1956. He was sentenced to 18 years in prison.

As an aftermath of the Vassall affair, two London newsmen went to prison Thursday night for contempt of court for refusing to disclose the sources of their information that admiralty colleagues knew Vassall was a homosexual and living beyond his means long before he was arrested.

Eternal Hope Springs From Prison Walls

PRIDE, FORGIVENESS, REMORSE SEEN IN 3 SEPARATE INSTANCES

By The Associated Press

Behind prison walls originates many an untold tale of heartbreak. But occasionally, as Thursday, pride, forgiveness and remorse betoken the poignancy of eternal hope.

In Kansas City an old man sits alone with memories of a small boy, seldom speaks to anyone. He nourishes his pride—and hope.

In Toele, Utah, a father clasps a teen-ager's hand and forswears malice. He offers forgiveness—and hope.

And in Jonesboro, Ga., a tall, blond boy fumbles with a yo-yo and recalls that it cost him part of his life. He knows remorse—and hope.

An Old Man Waits

The old man in Kansas City is Fred Engberg, 68, a pensioner, whose son, Roy Lee Engberg, is appealing a life sentence for murder. The father spends 6 days a week in a shoddy hotel room, listening to a radio, reading a newspaper or just staring. On the 7th day, Saturday, he walks 9 blocks to the Jackson County Jail to visit his son.

"I don't associate," says the elder Engberg. "I live within myself."

The father has been following this routine since last November when Roy Lee, 27, was sentenced for killing a policeman during a tavern holdup.

He's Covering

"I don't believe he killed that man," says Fred Engberg. "I think he's covering for somebody else."

Young Roy has always been his father's favorite among 5 children.

The elder Engberg recalls:

"When he was 3 or 4 years old I sent him out to feed the chickens. He couldn't reach the latch on the chicken house door, so he found a stick and pushed the latch up. When he came out he put a rock against the door to hold it shut, then used the stick to close the latch. That boy had incentive.

"He responds to kindness. If you have confidence in him he wouldn't let you down for the world. I'd be proud of him as a son if he was guilty. Very proud. I always had a tendency toward the boy."

Daughter Beaten

The father in Toele, Utah, is J. Maurice Clayton, whose 18-year-old daughter, Carol, was fatally beaten with a hammer last month. The youth whose hand he clasped is Rex Mecham Hintze, 17, accused of slaying the girl in a fit of senseless rage.

Hintze in handcuffs was brought into court and held for trial on first degree murder charges. After shaking his hand, Clayton said:

"We feel that our tragedy is not over, but that much of it is past. The boy's tragedy and his family's tragedy are just beginning. I wanted him to go into this thing knowing that Carol's mother and father bear him no ill will or malice.

"There are judgments that belong to the courts of man and others that belong in the courts of God. I hope that there will still be an opportunity for him to do something worthwhile in his life. If one or two persons can alter their lives for the better as a result of this tragedy, then surely Carol will not have died in vain."

Crime Prevention

The blond teen-ager with the yo-yo in Jonesboro, Ga., was identified only as Pat. He was one of 5 young prisoners from a Georgia reformatory who, clad in drab, blue denim uniforms, addressed an assembly of Jonesboro High School students in an experimental crime prevention program.

While the students listened in shocked silence, Pat told them he never had stolen so much as a piece of candy, until he started running around with older boys. His first theft was a yo-yo, a toy on a string.

"The funny part of it," Pat continued, "is that I had 3 yo-yos at home. I had plenty of everything."

30 Burglaries

One theft led to another until Pat had compiled a record of more than 30 burglaries, and prison sentences totaling 14 years.

"I bought a yo-yo like this for 14 years of my life," Pat told the high school youngsters, expressing his hope they would avoid the pitfalls that tripped him.

As the audience filed out, one student said:

"It's the most impressive program we've ever had."

-DISASTER AREA-

Debris, Mud, Grief Evidence Of Flood

Norwich, Conn. (AP) — Debris, mud and grief served as grim evidence Thursday of a flood — likened to an ice-loaded tidal wave — that burst through this old New England mill town.

Millions of gallons of water, rushing down from a broken dam Wednesday night, cut a path through the center of the business district and touched off a boiler explosion at a cord-manufacturing plant.

Six persons lost their lives. Six others were hospitalized.

Damge was estimated initially at between $2 million and $3 million. Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., said in Washington that he has been notified that Norwich — his hometown — has been designated a disaster area by the Small Business Administration.

Schools Shut

Schools were ordered closed for the day. A special clinic was set up to give typhoid inoculations as a precautionary measure, with vaccine provided by the state.

Town fathers declared the water safe for drinking.

Gov. John N. Dempsey, cancelling all his appointments at the State Capitol in Hartford, made an emergency inspection trip and pledged all the assistance possible from the state.

The plant explosion took 5 lives. One of the bodies was found in the afternoon on the property of a funeral home about one-quarter of a mile from the plant.

In addition, a mother, who was swept away from her husband and 3 children, was found dead under debris almost 12 hours later.

Chunks of ice more than two feet thick were carried by the racing waters and wrecked or damaged about 100 cars.

Tidal Wave

"It was like a tidal wave," said Pauline Leone, a resident of hard-hit Franklin Street.

"I thought it was the end of the world by flood," said another woman whose home was near the water's path.

John Dubitsky told of seeing people standing in the door at the Turner-Stanton Co. Mill, scene of the blast and collapse.

"They were screaming and yelling, but we couldn't help them," he said.

JOBLESS RATE HITS 6.1%

... Brings New Calls For Speedy Tax Slash

Washington (UPI) — The nation's unemployment rate rose in February to 6.1% of the labor force even though total February unemployment was the highest in history, the Labor Department reported Thursday.

The disclosure drew a prompt demand from George Meany, president of AFL-CIO, that Congress immediately enact a substantial tax cut "so desperately needed to revive the national economy."

Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz agreed on the need for speedy congressional action on President Kennedy's tax cut and reform proposals.

"Unemployment can be expected to increase in the coming months unless Congress acts quickly," he said. Wirtz said he saw no signs of a general recession, however.

The White House, asked for comment on the figures, said it was standing by Wirtz's remarks.

It was the first time since December, 1961, that the jobless rate had reached 6%.

The Labor Department said there were 4.9 million jobless in February, a 19-month high, resulting from an unexpected net increase of 250,000 unemployed workers.

Total non-farm employment rose by more than 500,000 to 62.3 million in February. But a spokesman said the rise was not enough to keep pace with the increase in the size of the labor force, now at 66.4 million.

For the past year the unemployment rate has hovered around 5.5%. In reply to a question, Harold Goldstein, who compiled the figures, said he did not know whether the nation had moved for good off this base.

"I honestly can't say if it is taking off into the wild blue yonder," he said. "There has been a worsening of the record but it could go down again next month."

Syria Rises In Pro-Nasser Revolt

London (AP)— Damascus Radio announced Thurday that the Syrian army has risen in a pro-Nasser revolt.

The broadcast assailed Syria's secession from President Gamal Abdel Nasser's United Arab Republic. It said the Revolutionary Command "extends a hand to Cairo, Baghdad and Sa'na," the Yemeni capital where a Nasser-backed revolutionary regime is now in power.

"The aim of the revolution is to bring the army back to the Arab line," the broadcast said.

The broadcasts were beamed simultaneously over Syria's Aleppo Radio, indicating the revolt was wisespread

The first broadcast said the Middle Eastern country's borders have been closed, its airports shutdown and a curfew clamped on the nation.

Formation of a "National Council of the Revolutionary Command" to rule the country was announced.

A revolt in Syria had been expected since pro-Nasser army officers in neighboring Iraq overthrew Premier Abdel Karim Kassem Feb. 8. The Syrian government tried to ward off rebellion with overtures to the new Iraqi regime, but the Iraqi revolutionists rebuffed them and turned to Nasser instead.

Four days ago, Cairo Radio announced that Syrian army units on the Israeli frontier had mutinied and demanded that Syria reunite with Egypt. A few hours later officials sources in Damascus labeled the report sheer fabrication.

Syria was united with Egypt in the United Arab Republic from March 1958 to September 1961.

Livestock Price Probe Is Sought

Finigan Request Touches Off Quick Support From Solons

State Agriculture Director Pearle F. Finigan asked the Nebraska Legislature and U. S. Attorney General Robert Kennedy Thursday to investigate reasons why livestock prices have been plunging without an accompanying drop in meat prices to the consumer.

In a letter to Kennedy, Finigan said "market prices for fat cattle and hoge have steadily declined in the last 3 months to the point the farmers are losing money. Despite this market decrease the beef and pork consumer has not received a corresponding price decrease and in fact, in some instances, prices have increased."

The suggestion struck a responsive chord in the lawmakers.

Seventeen senators took the floor to support the idea in speeches, and a motion by Sen. Don Thompson of McCook to refer the matter to the Unicameral's agriculture committee for immediate action was approved 40-0.

Specifically, Finigan asked that a special legislative committee be named to investigate the situation and asked that his department be given authority and staff to assist in the investigation.

"Literally millions of dollars in losses are being recorded by farmers in Nebraska today, caused by a drop in cattle, hog and lamb prices of as much as 25%, yet there is nothing comparable in the price of retail meat," Finigan declared in a statement.

"We have even had reports of increased prices in some commodities—meat for babies for instance—in the face of this sharp decline in cattle prices."

Sen. H. L. Gerhart of Newman Grove quoted figures indicating a sharp increase in meat imports, and Sen. Cecil Craft of North Platte said the whole thing points up that "we have been sold out by Europe and the Common Market."

There were suggestions, too, that somebody or something is propping up meat prices at retail.

"The law of supply and demand will work if there is no interference," said Sen. Ross Rasmussen of Hooper. "But if cattle drop, meat should drop. This has not happened . . . I'm suspicious of it. I question if the law of supply and demand is in free operation at this time. I think a 3rd party is involved."

Sen. Lloyd Stalder of Humboldt, who recently celebrated his 75th birthday, said he has "lived through many of these fluctuations in my lifetime." But the drop in fat cattle prices from a high of $32 per hundredweight down to $22 "is one of the most severe I've experienced," he said.

Sen. George Fleming of Sidney, a wheat farmer and cattle feeder, said the government farm program "is all mussed up." He said under the wheat program he has been able to grow wheat on only one-fourth of his land. Feed produced on the remaining portion piled up and cattle were purchased to be fed. "This is going to have us all broke before it's over with."

Sen. Elvin Adamson of Nenzel suggested that the 20 to 25% drop in cattle prices has caused a sag of 8 to 10% in the state's economy.

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff said experts say the price decline probably won't stop until July and fat cattle will hit a low of $20. In the Scottsbluff area, many farmers bought cattle after the damaging September freeze last year and are "now encircled by a pincers movement," he said.

Nationwide Study Aim Of Governor

Gov. Frank Morrison Thursday said he might ask agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman to conduct a nationwide study into the decline of livestock prices and the reason the drop has not been reflected in lower consumer meat prices.

The governor said that one state acting alone doesn't have the resources to adequately investigate this situation. It's going to take the resources of Nebraska and other states and the federal government."

Morrison said he intended asking Freeman what information he has on the situation. "We would also like to know if the U.S. Department of Agriculture has any program to help alleviate this economic pinch."

The average price of live cattle in Omaha last week was $22.90 compared with $28.07 for Thanksgiving week last year. U.S. Department of Agriculture spokesmen said the live price probably will average slightly over $22.00 for the current week. This would amount to a drop of about $6 per hundredweight.

At the same time dressed carcass beef weighing 600 to 700 pounds brought $37.00 to $37.50 Wednesday, and 700 to 800 pound beef was mostly $36.50 to $37.00. The week of Nov. 21 last year the best steer beef brought $46.00 to $46.50.

The USDA office in Omaha does not keep records on prices on beef cuts, but made these comparisons in the prices charged retailers in Chicago:

Square chucks Wednesday $37.00-$40.00, compared with $45.00-47.00 Nov. 21; comparable rounds $48.00-$51.00, compared to $55.00-$58.00; choice loins $64.00-$70.00, compared with $72.00-$76.00.

THE... WEATHER

Summary of Conditions

There will be increasing cloudiness across Nebraska and Iowa Friday with scattered light snows moving from north to south across Iowa. Some scattered light rain showers will develop around noon in northeast Nebraska and move south to southeastward. There is a possibility of wet snow mixed with the rain later in the day. This will pass through quite rapidly. There will be decreasing cloudiness Friday night from north to south across the region and generally partly cloudy skies Saturday.

Temperatures will be little affected in Nebraska Friday, so there will be little change. It will be somewhat cooler Friday night in Iowa and through much of east and central Nebraska with no important temperature changes expected Saturday, except that it will be slightly cooler in portions of western Iowa.

On the surface map the high in Kansas is filling and is becoming a part of a high in the Gulf states. The main feature is the low center in extreme north central North Dakota with a front extending from central to east central Montana and northwestward. The low will move to Michigan by Friday evening. The front will be positioned from the low through northern Missouri along the Nebraska-Kansas border, or slightly more to the south, and then will once again trail off to the northwest into eastern or central Montana. By Friday evening the high center along the Canada- North Dakota border will commence to move mostly southeastward.

Saxton Freed In Enders Robbery

Charles Saxton, 25, Denver, left, sits with his father, Ira Saxton of Hamlet Neb., outside the courtroom at Imperial where the younger Saxton was tried for the $23,000 robbery of the Enders, Neb., State Bank last year. An all-male jury acquitted Saxton in District Court at Imperial. Earlier Saxton was acquitted of the same charge in Federal Court, but convicted of driving the getaway car and placed on probation. Two other Denver men, Charles William Evans and Richard Davis, were convicted of the bank robbery in Federal Court.

KAREN GOODTEACHER

1st Hearing Date Fixed On Assault

A preliminary hearing on charges of assault to kill, wound or maim her husband was set for April 10 for Mrs. Karen Kay Goodteacher of 1344 D by County Judge Ralph Slocum Thursday.

The 21-year-old wife of Eddie Goodteacher was present at the arraignment with her lawyer, T. Clement Gaughan.

Appearance bond was set at $3,500 by Slocum.

Mrs. Goodteacher has been in City Jail since Tuesday night when her 18-year-old husband was shot twice with a .25-caliber pistol during a scuffle and argument with her.

Goodteacher is in fair condition at Bryan Memorial Hospital, officials said late Thursday.

Deputy County Attorney, Ron Lahners confirmed that Goodteacher refused to sign a complaint against his wife. The county attorney's office has statements on the shooting from Mrs. Goodteacher and from a 16-year-old youth who was present when the shooting occurred Tuesday night on 84th between Leighton and Adams.

IRS Raids Staged In 25 States

Washington (UPI) — Special agents of the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) Thursday night closed in on bookmaking and numbers parlors in 25 states, arresting persons who failed to produce a $50 federal gambling stamp.

The agents, members of the service's intelligence division, arrested suspects, and confiscated autos, gaming equipment and cash in the coast-to-coast series of raids.

An IRS spokesman said initial raids had resulted in arrest of 103 persons in 36 cities in 15 states. Four automobiles, $14,000 in cash and 20 gaming devices were seized.

Agents said the first cities hit were in Kentucky, New York State, Tennessee, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Kansas, Missouri, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland, Michigan and Illinois.

An agent said the IRS officers hit 7 locations in Manhattan and made 8 arrests, and arrested 11 persons at 10 locations in Brooklyn.

He said it was the division's 10th national raid of this type. Last September, special agents arrested 119 persons when they hit 54 cities on the same type of mission.

3% Decrease In Nebraska Farm Income

Washington (AP) — The Agriculture Department reported Thursday that the realized net income for the nation's farms averaged $3,498 last year. a record high.

The increase — 4% above average — reflected largely a decline in the number of farms, for total farm income last year increased less than one per cent over 1961.

Nebraska's income was down 3% to $4,287.

Abandoned Gold Mines Possible Alternate SAC

Denver (AP)— The Denver Post said abandoned gold mines at Cripple Creek, Colo., are being considered as an alternate command post for the Strategic Air Command.

SAC command headquarters are now at Offutt Air Force Base south of Omaha.

The Air Force and Army Engineers said a study is planned to determine feasibility of underground facilities at Cripple Creek, the Post said. No actual construction is scheduled for the present.

The Ajax and Vindicator mines are the chief sites being studied.

Cripple Creek, located west of Colorado Springs, produced $433 million in gold since the first discovery more than 80 years ago.

In Omaha Strategic Air Command headquarters declined comment on the report.

The Air Force regional engineer in Omaha said recently the Corps of Engineers had been asked to make some site inspections in the area to determine the feasibility of underground installations.

Similar test drillings were made in 1962 at Pawnee City, Neb., and a year earlier at Offutt.

Lien Filed Against 4 Grand Islanders

Grand Island (AP) — A federal lien in the amount of $69,734 has been filed in the office of the Hall County register of deeds against 4 men allegedly partners in operation of the former Rocket Club.

The club allegedly operated in Grand Island from 1959 to 1961.

Named as members of the partnership are Herbert Dondlinger, Homer C. Goethe, Gerald J. Pickrell and Robert L. Peery.

Amounts claimed for each of the 3 years are listed as unpaid wagering taxes. Amounts claimed due in separate years $27,535 in 1959, $26,110 in 1960 and $16,088 in 1961.

Federal officers raided the Rocket Club in early October of 1961.

Midwestern Feeders Also Shake Heads

By GLENN KREUSCHER
Farm Editor

Omaha — More than 1,500 midwestern livestock feeders registered here Thursday for the 15th annual National Livestock Conference. The crowd that came by car, bus and plane overflowed facilities to set a new attendance record for the conference.

The conference attraction was 10 "livestock specialists" representing 5 states who have been leaders in their respective livestock fields. They discussed "Livestock Feeding — who, what and and where?"

Adding additional color to the event was the noon luncheon speaker, Bob Feller, an Iowa farm boy, who pitched his way to the Baseball Hall of Fame.

While livestockmen came to discuss the future in livestock production, feeding and finance, another subject was freely discussed, "What has happened to cause the declining livestock prices?"

Feeders standing before the receipt and price board in the main lobby of the Omaha Livestock Exchange Building commented freely that, "Lower, lower, those are the only words that fit the 1963 livestock markets?"

Veteran commission men say that too many cattle are arriving at the market for the demand.

Conference speakers agreed that one of the most important items of the future to the livestock industry will be finance.

"This will hold true for the feeder of any size," said Durwood Lewter of Lubbock, Tex., who owns and manages a 100,000 head feedlot.

Lewter described the finished beef product that will meet the most consumer demand as, "a 1,000 pound steer that has been fed to a top good or low choice grade."

Any weight beyond that figure gets costly to the feeder and is not appreciated by the consumer, he added.

BAIT COMES HIGH

A bargain is served as bait when it is offered at a price way below cost; especially so when the sale is limited, or is tied into a minimum purchase or is a lure for a particular day. An order purchased at higher prices because of bait makes the bait come high.

Remember it is the regular prices you pay on the numerous items you do buy that really determine your total food bill—not a bait price or two.

The regular prices are lower at Beechners—compare and you too will shop and save at Beechners.

Unless specified, our specials are effective Thursday noon to Thursday noon. If our stock is depleted, checker will take order to be filled at sale price.

Leading A Horse To Water

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Frustration is the lot of many people, particularly those with more than their share of enthusiasm and imagination and those in positions of responsibility. Newspaper people can become frustrated from time to time as they labor, often in vain, in behalf of some ideal or some program that cannot seem to get off the ground. A public official may become frustrated when what he sees as the solution to the problems of his area fails to catch the fancy of the public.

Unexpected Reaction

The administration of President Kennedy as well as politicians in general have been surprised at the public attitude toward a tax cut. The administration and others, whether they agreed on the merits of a cut or not, were of the opinion that the public would go for a tax slice. But, public support of the tax cut has not been at all overwhelming and most reports show slightly more people against it than are for it. Why do things fail when they appear on the surface to be just the program we need and are looking for? The answer is that the human part of any problem is seldom explored.

This is very well shown in a Christian Science Monitor interview of Mrs. Kusum Nair of New Delhi, India, in the United States for a year on a grant from the Radcliff Institute for Independent Study and a Fulbright grant for travel. She is a well-known Indian journalist and author.

Mrs. Nair discussed in the interview the work she had done among the people of India in writing one of her recent books. She noted that she went out among the people of the countryside and small villages and talked to them about the problems that face her struggling nation. First of all, the people were impressed with the fact that anybody asked them what they thought. Nobody, she noted, has ever asked them this before.

She found in her visiting that many of the programs the government had proposed for agricultural advancement and general economic progress were running into conflict with the social character of the people. Such programs would run against the attitudes toward work in some areas, against customs opposed to the marketing of vegetables or against class distinctions. tI would seem like a fine thing, for instance, to educate young men in college in the latest agricultural methods, thus preparing them to return to the farms and revolutionize the outdated methods now being used. The only trouble is that some Indians believe farming is beneath the dignity of an educated person. Thus, the young people educated in agriculture were not returning to the farms but entering government work or some other field in which their talents could also be put to use.

"Economists and planners," Mrs. Nair said, "fail to take into account the human elements. Because differing social environments give different values, people in different social environments act differently—according to their values. The planners sometimes think that economic development will change values but they must remember that values may not be conducive to participation in a program. They must have cooperation to make it work . . . The agronomist says: 'You need better water, seed, tools, soil and to teach the peasant how to use them.' He assumes the peasant wants these things and will use them, but this is not necessarily the case."

And such is not necessarily the case about a great many things that one person or another might advocate as the cure for certain ills. A great deal of what we today call the farm problem is complicated by this human element. Is it that we cannot find a way around surplus production and declining farm incomes? No, in reality we could find a way around these things and it is a very simple way.

All we would have to do is sit tight and let nature take its course. In many areas of our economy, this is what we do and people believe we should do it in agriculture. The resulting glut of food on the market would drive farm income to disastrous levels and would simply bankrupt a lot of farmers.

However, out of that would come fewer farmers and farmers with a much keener appreciation of certain economic facts. The world has to have food and when farmers went broke and left the land. There would be less food which would raise the price and again make farming profitable. But all of this ignores the multitude of human problems involved. There is the family farm way of life that many want preserved, others want small towns to survive and others worry about food coming under the control of completely commercial operators.

The Human Element

The distinction between the human and mechanical parts of a problems provides us no answer, but the realization that such a distinction exists is an important step. What we might feel we know is good for others may well be quite another thing to them. What others want and what they value is of more significance than a stranger's assessment of their needs.

"Take Up Thy Bed And Walk"

Of Questionable Merit

Troubled Peru, in South America, has been under military rule since last July. Now due to a falling out among the military leaders General Nicolas Lindley Lopez has emerged as the new chief of state.

A grain of comfort can be derived from the change inasmuch as Gen. Lopez has declared his regime friendly to the United States and also has stated an intention to restore representative government at a general election next June.

But that is about where we came in. Last July the military grabbed control because it was feared that the pending election might elect a liberal, Victor Haya de la Torre. All one can make of it is that the military is ready to restore representative government the moment it feels sure that the people will elect an approved man. By our way of measuring, that is not free and democratic at all. It only amounts to tolerating a civilian president who will be careful not to do anything displeasing to the military.

None of this speaks well for the administration's great hope in the Alliance for Progress. If its benefits are applied in the absence of popularly supported government it can amount to little more than strengthening the position of a military autocracy even to giving it a false image of doing good.

It must be granted that no real improvement can be achieved in any country unless law and order prevails and Peru is no exception. There is a place for the military. But the new leadership there owes it to the helping nations to prove beyond a doubt that its zeal for order stops short of dictatorship. Without that, aid programs are not in order.

Investigation Timely

The sharp drop in livestock prices, not at all reflected in lower retail meat prices, has so disturbed Agriculture Director Pearle Finigan that he has asked for a legislative investigation.

He got it by a 40 to 0 vote.

Such market phenomena are serious to Nebraska. The drop in price of livestock on the hoof means a substantial decline in farm income. No proportionate drop in retail prices bars the way to compensating relief.

Some will point out that an investigation can do no more than dramatize a phenomenon and that due to free market characteristics time will correct the imbalance. But such an explanation cannot discount the value of an inquiry.

The matter of pricing should be ventilated, if for no other reason than the instructive value it has for the average consumer. It could hasten a correction of the market.

Certainly, it will show that the matter of supply and demand, and their effect on prices is not a simple thing; that commodities can remain underpriced for an indefinitely long period in a market where the finished product commands a profitable position. This, of course, has been the abiding problem of all farm production and the root cause of agriculture's ill health.

If the investigation does no more than make this fact more clear and convincing it will have been eminently worth while.

Capital Punishment Stays

Capital punishment will remain a part of the laws of Nebraska as a result of a legislative committee's action killing a measure to abolish the practice. Thus, Nebraska will continue to demand an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth when the situation seems to justify it.

However, the committee's action is not as significant as it might have been many years ago. Those who oppose capital punishment can find some satisfaction in the fact that the power is a rarely used one in this state. When it is used, there is not even debate over the guilt or innocence of the condemned and the party so sentenced constitutes a real menace to society.

The existence of the law is not going to stop all murder, as is often pointed out and as experience clearly shows us, but it undoubtedly does serve as some deterrent to crimes of extreme violence. Of course, there is no way of knowing the crime prevented by the law but any prevention is worthwhile.

The laws of our society today have become so complicated and extensive that capital punishment does not offer the possibility of a grave miscarriage of justice that might once have been the case. It is even becoming increasingly difficult to secure convictions on charges of first degree murder, much less a death sentence if such a charge is sustained. Certainly, the tendency is toward life in prison.

Many will never find any comfort with the capital punishment law but its isolated usage despite its presence is a testimonial to a certain refinement of our social order.

A Second Cuba Is Suggested

WASHINGTON — Leroy Collins, former governor of Florida, who knows Florida and Cuba better than most, has an idea regarding the future of Cuban exiles. He suggests that the United States help obtain a good-sized island in the Bahamas or the West Indies and then help to settle the Cuban refugees on it as a "New Cuba."

At present, there are 200,000 Cuban exiles in Florida. They have crowded into the southern tip of the peninsula because the climate is similar to their own and because they want to speak the same language and discuss the same problems with other Cubans. However, this creates a tremendous pressure in southern Florida and attempts to help the Cubans to migrate elsewhere have failed.

Meanwhile, the U.S. government is paying around $80,000,000 a year in aid in the Miami area alone. The state of Florida and various private institutions are also contributing substantially. Unfortunately, the Cubans cannot all find jobs without putting a great many Americans out of work, and, as a result, many receive unemployment checks, though capable of constructive work. This means idleness, unrest, and agitation.

Furthermore, it's doubtful that all these Cubans will return to Cuba once the Castro regime abdicates. Some will. But by the time Castro gets out, the Cuban refugees will have become accustomed to American living standards and many probably will not want to go back home.

"Therefore," suggests Governor Collins, "why don't we obtain a good-sized, presently uninhabited island in the Bahamas or the West Indies, and help these people move there and form a new Cuba?

"We would have to foot much of the bill to develop housing, roads, health facilities, schools, agriculture, small industries, etc., but such an undertaking," observes Governor Collins, "could keep alive in these people a deep spirit of continued interest in their homeland and they could develop their own culture and not be swallowed up in ours.

"They could also have the opportunity of doing things by themselves, for themselves, not be mere wards of a beneficent neighbor government.

"They could, in the new Cuba, become an experienced and socially progressive democratic government."

JFK Unruffled By Doubting Questions

WASHINGTON—President Kennedy came out Wednesday for the rhythm method of controlling reactions to the ups and down of the New Frontier.

He was told at his press conference that some impression existed that he is presently on the defensive with respect to his policies, foreign and domestic. The President smiled.

He said he believed that some rhythm existed in both personal and national life. The administration, he suggested, was still in a period of gestation and that for his part he preferred his current dilemmas to those that existed in the summer of 1961.

This might normally be viewed as merely some airy persiflage in a conference compelling him to one long defense in answer to the sustained drumfire of criticism heard daily from Republicans and some Democrats. It happens, however, to be in line with the point of view increasingly expressed by administration stalwarts when a hardy Democrat suggests that the New Frontier is as sluggish as the economy.

This view is that the administration cannot be expected to cope with such a Congress and so many neglected problems by hot pursuit. Time, it is argued, will take care of many things and the President's second term will disarm every critic.

It may or may not be true that a planned effort to keep the President high in popularity polls until 1964 is safely negotiated is under way and that legislative controversy will not be allowed to interfere. It seems unlikely that a President who gained a reputation as an inveterate compromiser during his first term would alter his nature or his course in a second.

Certainly the President did not seem disturbed by this week's emphasis on what his critics were saying. He was cheerful and self-confident throughout.

He was precise when it served his purpose, as in the tax and budget exchanges. He threw a cloak of generalities over hard questions about the Justice Department's decision to settle a complicated dispute with the Swiss over who gets what of a chemical gold mine formerly German-owned.

Perhaps Republicans, for all their outcries, have encouraged him. Their party leaders meeting last week end found themselves in a dilemma over the site of their national convention next year. Worse, their brightest new faces took the occasion to laugh off their own presidential candidacies. Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania and George Romney of Michigan said all they wanted was the convention for their state.

This leaves Gov. Nelson Rockefeller and Senator Barry Goldwater, each of whom has his detractors. These detractors distinguished by a total lack of non-admiration for the candidate they don't prefer. In such situations, the normal politician looks around hopefully for a compromise.

☆ ☆ ☆

The President's own opinion is said to be that he will be running against Rockefeller and that's O.K.

The President and Washington will get their first real good look at Gov. Romney this week when he speaks for his party at the annual gridiron dinner. These occasions do not make a politician president, but some hopefuls have suffered from the adverse impression made at that forum.

THE NEIGHBORS SAY

Buckingham On The Platte?

By MONA B. PARKER

Mrs. Helen Marr is another example of the old saying that you can take the girl out of the farm but you can't take the farm out of the girl.

Even though she has been living in town for some time now, the Walthill Citizen writer says that years of living on the farm taught her so thoroughly the value of keeping a supply of staple foods on hand at all times that now, four blocks from a grocery store, she still can't break the habit. Wintertime for rural folks often means roads that are closed for days and even weeks at a time. Hence the country homemaker soon learns to keep on hand supplies of flour, sugar, yeast, rice, salt, cereal and the like. It makes the difference, Mrs. Marr explains, between a comfortable snow-bound living or a limited diet.

When three weekends in a row offered below-zero weather, she merely baked up bread, cookies, rolls and pies, with no need to venture forth, even a short four blocks.

☆ ☆ ☆

Nebraskans are imbued with a weather awareness, and they start young at the game. Marlin Waechter tells in the Stanton Register of the little local miss whose favorite dolly "caught cold" during a recent drastic drop in temperature. Her mother inquired if there was a fever after the tot put a thermometer in the doll's mouth.

"Yes," she was informed. "Ten below!"

☆ ☆ ☆

Charles Greelee had a clarification for Oshkosh residents on the matter of snow removal. In the Garden County News he explained that the governing ordinance requires the keeping of sidewalks or "sidewalk space" clear of ice, mud and snow.

This, he explained further, "sounds as if you have to keep a path open where a sidewalk should be in case you haven't put in the sidewalk yet."

A few faint hints of springtime were starting to creep into the news, also . . .

The Arapahoe Public-Mirror noted that the wheat was showing up a bit green under what snowdrifts remained . . . that robins were busy here and there with their early chores . . . and the further living, kicking evidence in the form of a half-inch grasshopper found in the Turkey Creek area north of Edison. The P-M stated that if anyone doubts that grasshoppers are tough, it should be considered that the early specimen was still frisky after four days of being stoppered up tightly in a medicine bottle.

The Gering Courier had a rather unusual story to relate about one of its citizens, just back from a deep sea fishing excursion down near Acapulco, Mexico. He caught a nine-foot sailfish, but when he found out that it would cost him $300 to get it mounted, he threw it back. However, he had his picture taken with it before returning it to the briny deep.

As a country woman interested in anything that will increase the sale of eggs, Mrs. Lester Eastwood of the Pawnee Republican says she probably should register enthusiasm about any new promotion scheme. But somehow the idea of frozen fried eggs to be thawed in a toaster and served leaves her colder than the product itself. An egg which is fried just right is a very palatable offering, she says. But cold fried eggs are "one of the saddest sights in the culinary world. I've fed the dog too many eggs left over from breakfast to be interested in a frozen egg that has to be warmed up in a toaster. And to think of a whole repulsive row of frozen eggs staring up at the shopper! It would be enough to make her scream for help and run for the nearest exit."

☆ ☆ ☆

Bob Miller of the Cozad Local approved of the fact that Sir Winston is now an honorary citizen of the state of Nebraska, wonders if the statesman might consider running for the State Legislature. He let his imagination go from there and decided probably it was just as well that it was Mr. Churchill rather than Queen Elizabeth II who was so honored. Her Highness might have decided on the Midlands as a place of residence, established a castle on the Platte, and Mr. Miller didn't think that stream was currently deep enough to serve as a moat.

Your Five Cents Worth

Brevity in letters is requested, but length in itself will have no bearing on publication. Writers are advised that needless details and repetitious matter will be edited out of letters. Too frequent contributions from one person on the same subject may be rejected. All letters must be accompanied by writer's true name but may be submitted for publication under a pen name or initials. However, letters will be printed under a pen name or initials only at the editor's discretion.

Task Of Editing

Lincoln, Neb.

I was happy to note that The Star did not give any coverage to the recent unfounded attack by Mr. Ray Simmons of Fremont against the university and its campus newspaper.

However, since the event was carried by all other news media throughout the state, I'm wondering why The Star so completely ignored it? How much other news is not printed and why?

KARL P. OEHLER

Editor's Note: The episode involving Mr. Ray Simmons and the University of Nebraska campus newspaper occurred Saturday and was carried by this newspaper in its Sunday editions. It was not carried again Monday or in any other daily editions because no additional news elements developed. It might be added, however, that the writer of the above letter raises an interesting question. This newspaper has always been concerned about the giving of large amounts of space to people who have no particular justification for their positions. If Mr. Simmons is permitted to attack the university on the front pages of the daily papers, why cannot any person do this or anything else that pleases them? Is it the responsibility of the press to open its news columns to any and all, regardless of what we might call their "credentials" or is this space to be reserved for those whose comment stems from a related position of responsibility? What qualifies Mr. Simmons to appear in headlines on Page One as opposed to those whose comments are found in this column? Personally, it is doubted that a news medium always fulfills its obligation to edit the news and when it does, it runs the risk of being accused of "not printing the news" because of some prejudice.

Question Of Support

Lincoln, Neb.

This letter is in regard to Mr. Simmons' attack upon the editorial policies of the Daily Nebraskan on March 2, 1963.

Mr. Simmons brings out an important point. Should a taxpayer support anything that depends on public finances which expresses opinions other than his own?

First, is the Daily Nebraskan publicly supported?

Second, let us forget the political motivations which moved Mr. Simmons to attack the aforesaid publication. Should Mr. Simmons pay taxes which help "support" a publication that expresses political views contrary to his views?

I shall answer this question with a question. Should I help pay the salary of a President who almost sent me to war against Russia? Should I support an individual or individuals who might send me to be killed on foreign earth?

Of course I should not support them. Mr. Simmons is right and should be congratulated on his progressive thinking. JOE HRABA

Brighter Days?

Lincoln, Neb.

Now that the nation's railroads have been granted authority to rid themselves of the "featherbedders," it will be interesting to see what other propaganda they will resort to, to downgrade their employes.

No doubt there are isolated cases where there is a little featherbedding going on but with any industry so far-flung as the railroads, one will find a job now and then where the duties are light at times; nevertheless a man should be there on the job for the sake of safety, if nothing else.

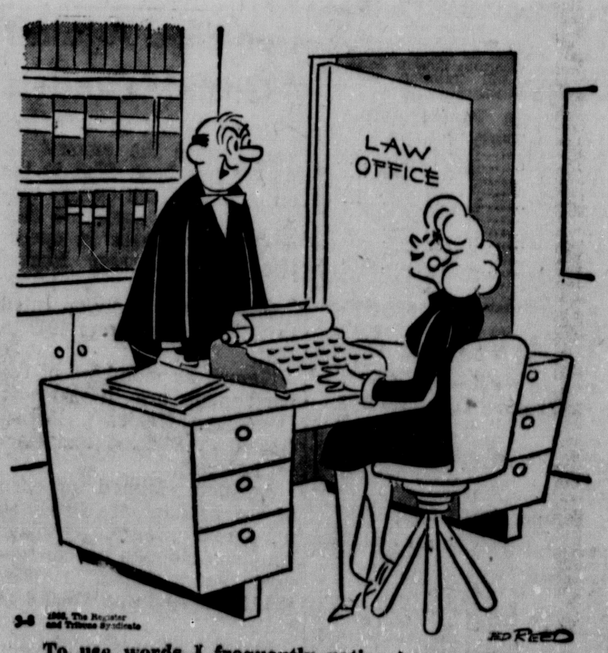
Six hundred million dollars — that's quite a savings, isn't it? That is the figure quoted by the railroads that they will save annually in wages paid to these featherbedders. It will be assumed that this saving will be passed on to the public in reduced freight rates and passenger fares. Remember when the 10% tax on passenger fares was dispensed with just a few months ago? Was this savings passed on to the public? No, of course not. They already had asked for and received a 10% increase in passenger fares. Besides boosting the stock dividends and increasing the wages of the officers, there will be the need of more "efficiency experts" to find a way of eliminating the "experts" they now have on hand.

I can just envision miles of brand new freight cars and plush passenger equipment that will be built with the millions that are saved by the reduction of forces. The year-around car shortage will not exist; services to the public will be out of this world. Every depot will have an agent, only he will be spending most of his spare time looking through the want ads because he will be the next target and will need another job. For any service or information, all we will need to do is call Lincoln or Omaha and there will probably be a couple more featherbedders on duty, trying to do the work of 10 men. Brighter days are ahead, but if I were you, I would keep my eyes open when I see a train as it will be "flying blind" part of the time, especially if they are switching with a skeleton crew.

Where did I put that want-ad section?

DOUBTFUL

OFF THE RECORD By Ed. Reed



To use words I frequently notice in your typing, Miss Pipp—ARE YUO RFEE FOR LUCNH?"

Bank Holding Bill Passed

Nebraska's Legislature Thursday passed a bill designed to prevent the creation of additional bank holding companies in the state.

The measure, LB59, passed 36-2 on final reading, carries the emergency clause and will become effectively immediately when Gov. Frank Morrison applies pen to it.

Sens. Don McGinley of Ogallala and Fern Orme of Lincoln cast the dissenting votes.

Sen. H. L. Gerhart of Newman Grove, a banker, was joined by 25 colleagues in sponsoring the bill, formally known as "The Bank Holding Company Act of 1963."

The act defines a bank holding company as one which directly or indirectly owns or controls 25% or more of the voting shares of each of two or more banks, which controls the election of a majority of directors of each of two or more banks, or for the benefit of whose shareholders or members 25% or more of the voting shares of each of two or more banks or a bank holding company is held by trustees.

Other bills passed Thursday:

LB271 (Judiciary Committee)—Providing the manner of service of process in civil actions against the State of Nebraska. (39-0)

LB272 (Judiciary Committee)—Extending the time for fiduciaries to mail to beneficiaries notice of the time and place of hearing. (38-0)

LB162 (Judiciary)—Repealing assorted obsolete sections of law. (37-0)

LB159 (Judiciary)—Harmonizing provisions of school laws, deleting obsolete matter and redefining terms. (38-0).

LB273 (Judiciary)—Extending the time for filing a fiduciary report and petition. (39-0)

LB276 (Judiciary)—Making applicable to county courts certain district ccurt procedures and practices. (40-0)

Legislative Bills Introduced

Bill introduced in the Legislature Thursday:

LB759 (Budget Committee) — Appropriating $50,000 to pay for professional services "in conducting a study of state accounting and financial organization, systems and procedure."

LB760 (Salaries and Claims Committee)—Providing a procedure for obtaining a refund of gas taxes paid when the original copy of the invoice for refund has been lost.

LB761 (Public Works Committee) — Revising LB71 to delete the requirement that the legislative council's executive board must approve any disbursements from the Small Watersheds Flood Control Fund.

Lancaster Wheat Growers To Meet

Members of the Lancaster County Wheat Growers will meet at 8 p.m. Friday at the Equity Union elevator, according to Wayne Marolf, president of the group.

Mannie Kreader, secretary of the Nebraska Wheat Growers Association, will report on market possibilities for wheat in future years. Also on the program will be John Bowers, manager of the Lancaster County ASCS office.

Numerous Amendments To Fireworks Bill Approved

Nebraska Legislators Thursday approved numerous amendments to a fireworks control bill, including one to permit the shooting of fire crackers to scare off wild ducks, but the measure still hasn't been disposed of.

For the second time this week, the lawmakers got into a lengthy discussion of the measure, LB470, and for the second time adjourned with a kill motion pending.

Sen. Sam Klaver of Omaha submitted the kill motion, claiming the proposal as revised this morning through amendments amounts to a license to "maim and disfigure" children.

He said 10 or 11 states have banned fireworks completely and none have made a move to repeal the laws prohibiting them. In addition, Klaver said, 26 states allow fireworks "of such a character they are absolutely impossible of hurting people."

He said if the Unicameral revived his LB232, which would prohibit discharge of fireworks except by organized groups, he would cooperate in an amendment to assure proper enforcement.

LB232 has been killed.

Amendments to LB470 included provisions for:

—Use of firecrackers to scare off wild ducks, which Sen. George Syas of Omaha said "might be eating a farmer out of house and home."

—Taking enforcement out of the hands of the fire marshal and leaving it on the local level.

—A $5 retailer's license.

—Selling fireworks between June 1 and July 5, instead of June 27 to July 5.

A proposed amendment by Sen. Terry Carpenter that after 1965 shooting of fireworks in any community would have to be approved by a vote of the people lost on a voice vote.

New Watershed Bill Introduced

The Public Works Committee Thursday introduced into the Legislature a new watershed bill, LB761, which would revise a bill passed earlier but ruled unconstitutional.

The attorney general had ruled that LB71 was unconstitutional because it included a requirement that the legislative council's executive boards approve any disbursements from the Small Watersheds Flood Control Fund. The provision constitutes legislative encroachment on executive powers, the attorney general ruled.

The new bill deletes the unconstitutional provision. It was placed on general file for floor debate without a public hearing.

Bill To Be Considered

Karachi, Pakistan (AP) — The National Assembly opening this week will consider a bill carrying the death penalty for corrupt officials.

Hospital Facilities Transfer Advanced

A bill proposing the transfer of the use and facilities of a presently unused structure at the Norfolk State Hospital to the management of the commandant of the Grand Island Soldiers and Sailors Home was given 31-0 initial approval in the Unicameral Thursday.

The Norfolk building would be used to accommodate certain categories of mentally ill veterans now cared for at Beatrice and Hastings state institutions.

Sen. T. C. Reeves, sponsor of the bill, said if the bill is enacted into law, the state would receive a federal subsidy of $912 annually for each of the veterans transferred. The state could save about $120,000 annually if the state got into position to receive the federal money, he said.

The lawmakers also gave preliminary approval to:

LB227—Designed to bring the requirements for the organization of a cooperative corporation in line with requirements of the general corporation law.

LB248—Consolidating each 5 years the uncollected taxes in the county which appear on the tax list.

Beatrice State Home Visit Brings Gratitude, Compassion

By BETTY PERSON
Star Staff Writer

You come away from a visit to the Beatrice State Home with a feeling of deep gratitude and strong compassion — gratitude for your own good fortune in life, gratitude for the kindness and dedication of staff members who serve patients at the home, and compassion for the patients themselves and their families.

You are impressed with the cleanliness of the institution—appalled at the crowded conditions.

You stand in wonder when one ward aide acknowledges that she alone is responsible for the care of 104 women patients whose ages range from 17 to 55 years.

"I don't have much trouble with my girls," she cherrfully relates, but she admits she could use more help—especially when trouble breaks out.

Heart Aches

Your heart aches when you see the little children—their eager smiles, their shy little "hellos", their little hands reaching out for yours.

You marvel at the help given the bed patients so lovingly by those who are not so severely retarded.

You are impressed with the politeness of everyone in the institution—you cannot count the times your smallest gesture brought a kind "thank you" in response.

You watch a group of 8 young girls in a training class on table manners — perfect little ladies justly proud of their accomplishments.

You rejoice with another little girl who has just completed a puzzle — not so easy a task for her.

Teachers Patient

You are impressed with the patience and diligence of the teachers who work so kindly with youngsters learning to read and work simple arithmetic problems.

Some 350 patients — both those who are educable, and those trainable — now attend classes for 1½ hours a day.

Superintendent M. E. Wyant and Director of Education William F. Chollar told the Legislature's Budget Committee Thursday there are another 250 youngsters who should be in classes—but there are not enough classrooms, nor teachers.

If facilities and staff could be made available, Chollar said many of the youngsters have the ability to attend class for a much longer period of time each day.

It would take 18 to 22 teachers, plus a new school building, to provide these opportunities.

'Deserve Opportunity'

"Whether they can be educated or trained to the point that they can leave the institution and return to community life, or whether they are going to stay here with us for the rest of their lives, they deserve to be given every opportunity of which they are capable," Wyant stated.

You agree.

You visit the hospital—bulging with patients whose needs are more complex — whose ills extend beyond those affecting the mind.

You cannot question Wyant's judgment that more hospital space is urgently needed, nor that more staff is needed to care for their patients.

You visit wards in buildings which house patients whose disabilities are not so severe, but you wonder how 17 persons can sleep in one room with their beds spaced less than one foot apart.

You cannot question that more dormitory space is badly needed.

The present kitchen facility for the institution was built to handle 1,700 patients —but the patient load on this March day numbers 2,210.

The power plant needs to be brought up to standards commensurate with the ever-growing size of the institution.

The lone dentist for the institution, Dr. H. W. Heina, who has tended these patients for 22 years, said the institution needs 3 full-time dentists and 3 full-time dental hygienists to provide adequate care. Dental health is a particularly acute problem for mentally retarded persons.

The Beatrice Home is staffed with the most dedicated people it has been your privilege to meet, but they need help with more buildings and more personnel to continue their service.

Nebraska should give them all the help it possibly can.

DUMP MILK IN PROTEST

A group of disgruntled farmers stand by as milk pours from a hose onto the ground near Annandale, Minn., Thursday as they demonstrate against a boycott by a creamery association to buy the milk from an Albion-French Lake, Minn., creamery which has a contract with the National Farmers Organization. Some 5,000 gallons of milk was dumped in a field by members of the NFO.

Khrushchev's Son-In-Law Meets Pope

Vatican City (AP) — Premier Khrushchev's atheist son-in-law met Pope John XXIII Thursday, bowed, shook hands and then chatted with him for 18 minutes in the privacy of the papal library.

Vatican sources said Alexei Adzhubei and his wife Rada asked to see the pontiff. Apparently Pope John welcomed the chance to give the Soviet visitor the unexpected private audience. Adzhubei said they talked about peace.

The meeting with the chief editor of the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia was the first of a Roman Catholic leader and an important Soviet Communist.

The audience may have laid the groundwork for a visit to the 81-year-old Pope by Khrushchev himself. The premier may visit Italy later in the year. An unconfirmed report said Adzhubei carried a message to the Pope from the Soviet premier.

N-Blast Creates New Minerals

Washington (AP)— Creation of man-made minerals by the fire and fury of an American underground nuclear blast was reported Thursday.

And by ironic coincidence one of them is believed to be the artificial counterpart of muscovite — a form of mica first found in nature many years ago by the Russians. Others included various lead-containing minerals.

This nuclear-age variation of alchemy was reported by Leonard M. Gard of the geological survey who said it resulted as an unusual by-product of the Atomic Energy Commission's Project Gnome. This was the detonation of a nuclear device packing the wallop of 3,000 tons of TNT 1,200 feet below the surface in a thick salt deposit southeast of Carlsbad, N.M., on Dec. 10, 1961.

Experts of the AEC told a reporter it's doubtful the new finding, of itself, would lead to industrial applications of blast-created minerals. They said the types of minerals that can be created in a salt environment, like the site of the Gnome blast, are apparently limited.

But they said the work demonstrates beyond doubt that strange chemical transformations can be achieved beneath the ground by the high pressures and temperatures of nuclear blasts and that conceivably:

1. Such blasts in materials richer in chemical elements than ordinary salt — for example, in limestone, which contains nearly a dozen basic chemical elements — might well lead to "something new and useful" in the industrial line.

2. Chemicals now used in industry might be placed inside a blast site prior to a detonation and converted into entirely new products having different applications.

Studied Site

Gard, a geologist employed at the Denver branch of the geological survey, was one of a group who studied the Gnome site before and after the blast.

In a report in the technical journal "Science," he said the blast produced veins of "black salt containing (man-made) minerals created by the blast," and that the veins resembled ore-bearing veins seen in some western mining camps.

The minerals included such things as:

1. Quartz and mica derived from impurities which are present in the pre-shot salt and were caused to fuse with other chemicals under great heat and pressure.

2. Lead minerals, such as lead hydroxide choloride and lead sulfide — with the lead coming from the melting of lead blocks used in the shot area to measure effects of the detonation. The molten lead then combined with chemicals in the salt.

Referring to the mica, Gard said studies showed it to be a "micaceous mineral — probably muscovite."

Uni Place Crash Injures Teen-Ager

Research Advances Okayed

. . . AG COMMITTEE BACKS FINIGAN

The Agriculture Committee agreed to help Pearle Finigan "wipe out the grey line between the laboratory and the market" in Nebraska's agricultural research program Thursday.

LB695 was advanced to general file 4-0 with one member not voting.

Finigan, state agriculture director, asked that the uses of the Nebraska agriculture products research fund be expanded to include pilot plant development, market promotion and other activities toward commercialization of products developed by the fund.

"We are not going into business," Finigan said "but it's necessary to ready our products to a point where industry will take them over. And we can't sell our patents to industry without such pilot work."

Finigan said he would hope to have ag research products accepted by foreign markets.

Peggy Walton, a Wheat Commission home economist, said a trip to Central America determined such products as the Nebraskit could be marketed.

The one-tenth mill levy on all property except intangibles now intended for the research fund is only for research and development by present statute.

The committee advanced LB656 to eliminate the liability of auctioneers who "in good faith and without notice of a mortgage thereon. sell personal property at auction, which in fact is subject to a chattel mortgage . . . and is not liable to the mortgage for any damage sustained as a result of such sale."

Teen Trouble Involves Motivation, Not Laws

Problems in the handling of troublesome teen-age students involve motivation rather than legislation, the Education Committee was told Thursday.

The testimony came before the committee axed 6-1 LB496 which proposes extending the age for compulsory education from 16 to 18 years.

Sen. Ross Rasmussen of Hooper, who sponsored the measure, suggested that it be killed. One reason, he said, is that it would conflict with present child labor laws.

Carol Seevers, superintendent at Waverly, said some problem students become "unbearable" with their behavior but that the blanket answer to the problem is not to be found in kicking them out of school.

He and Don Warner, assistant superintendent of Omaha schools, said a study should be made on setting up educational programs for those who cannot find the normal educational program "meaningful."

The committee advanced on a 6-1 vote LB425 which modifies the law dealing with the suspension of students guilty of gross misbehavior and persistent disobedience.

Killed 5-2 was LB267 which would have provided for minimum 12-year periods of leases of school lands.

Voluminous Trade Code Heard, Held

The Banking Committee listened to explanations of a voluminous Uniform Commercial Code Thursday and then continued the hearing until April 4.

The bill embodying the code is LB49, introduced by 21 senators.

Another bill heard previously, LB614, was amended and advanced by the committee. It provides for the regulation by the Insurance Department securities not now controlled by the Department of Banking. It was introduced by Sens. Kenneth Bowen of Red Cloud, Marvin Stromer of Lincoln and Jerome Warner of Waverly.

The main witnesses testifying on the commercial code bill were Robert Guenzel, representing the Nebraska Bar Association, and Chauncey Barney, representing the Nebraska Bankers Association.

They explained that the 265-page printed bill is designed to bring Nebraska's commercial law in conformity with other states.

Bill To Boost Governor Pay Held By Body

A bill raising the salary of Nebraska's governor above the present $14,000 limitation was held Thursday by the Legislature's Salaries and Claims Committee.

The bill, LB516, supported by two former governors, would raise the salary to $16,000.

Former Gov. Robert Crosby of Lincoln told the committee that the minimum salary should be "at least $20,000." And Val Peterson of Hastings, another former chief executive, set the minimum figure at $25,000.

Crosby emphasized to the committee that the University of Nebraska chancellor's salary is $27,000, and that of the football coaches $19,000. He declared that he has never understood why Nebraska "downgrades" the governor's office by low salary figures.

Two other salary bills held, LBs 646 and 536 would respectively give the insurance director authority to increase the salaries of junior examiners, and raise the salaries of the municipal judge salaries in Lincoln.

There was no opposition to any of the 3 bills.

Committee Suggests Three Confirmations

The Committee on Committees Thursday recommended legislative confirmation of 3 appointments by Gov. Frank Morrison to the advisory committee to the State Department of Institutions and Welfare.

They are Kara Lee Eikleberry and Don Duncan of Lincoln and John Humpal of Omaha.

The typical American family lives in the same house for 6 years and 7 months, a national study made by a moving firm shows.

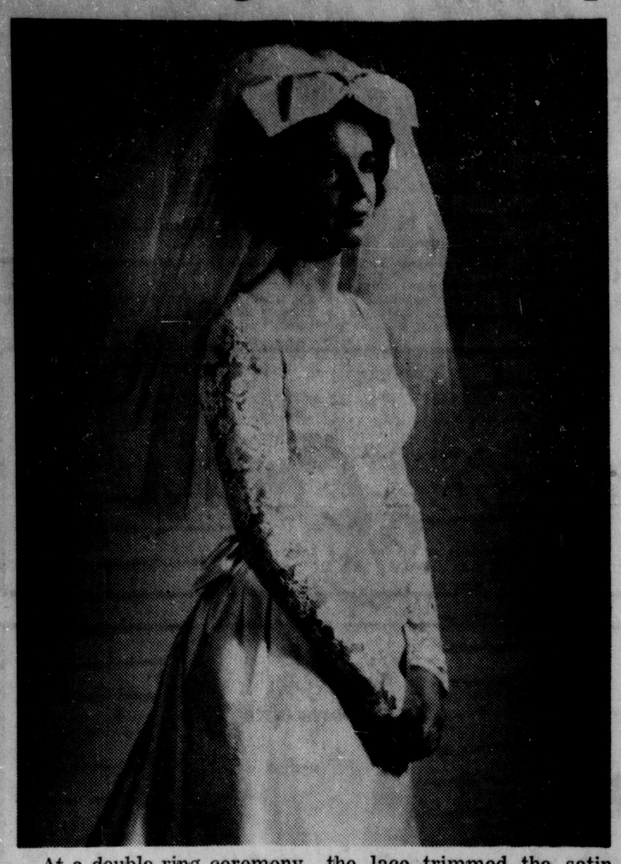
Evening Ceremony



At a double ring ceremony solemnized on Saturday evening, Feb. 23, Miss Lynne Mary Howard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Quinten Howard of Salt Lake City, Utah, became the bride of Richard Lee Goodhart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Goodhart of Humboldt. The lines of the service were read by Dr. Lowell L. Bennion, director of the Latter Day Saints Institute of Religion at the University of Utah, before a background of white chrysanthemums in the home of the bride's parents.

The bride chose traditional white satin and lace for her wedding gown. Alencon lace fashioned the long-sleeved bodice, which was designed with a sabrina neckline, and appliques of the lace trimmed the satin skirt, which was caught into back fullness by a tailored bow of the satin and extended into a chapel train. A bow bandeau of the satin held to the head her illusion veil.

A graduate of the University of Utah, where she is a member of Phi Beta Kappa honor society, the bride attended the Universities of Paris and Lille, in France, and Middlebury College, Middlebury, Vt., Stanford University in California, and McGill University, Montreal, Canada.

Mr. Goodhart is a graduate of the University of Nebraska and a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity. Both have been members of the faculty of the Arvada, Colo., Junior High School.

DAYS GROW LONGER—BUSIER

Began calling the roll on the homecomers this ayem—It was a waste of time. We'll try again in a couple of weeks or so since we hear that the traveling populace will be coming home from Europe, around the world, Arizona, and points east and west.

Also checked on one of the popular April brides — Miss Kit Stuart who, as you have read before, has chosen Saturday, April 13, for her marriage to Richard Schmoker.

Miss Stuart is to have an exceedingly busy weekend, but before we continue with the current courtesies, we want to catch up on one we seemed to have missed — It is the party for which Dr. and Mrs. Lee Stover were host and hostess on Sunday, Feb. 24, when they entertained at their home.

* * *

Tomorrow is Saturday — the day that Mrs. Harry Haynie and her daughter, Miss Cindy Haynie — Mrs. George Bastian and her daughter, Mrs. Gary Fries, will compliment Miss Stuart when they entertain at a 12:30 o'clock luncheon at the Lincoln Country Club. Luncheon places will be arranged for 20, and the soon-to-be bride will be presented with a miscellaneous shower.

* * *

Sunday morning hostesses for Miss Stuart will be Mrs. O. V. Calhoun, Mrs. W. P. McDonald and Mrs. Norman Beatty who will entertain at the home of Mrs. Calhoun. The party will be an 11 o'clock brunch to which 15 guests have been invited, and Miss Stuart will receive a shower of kitchen gadgets.

* * *

Mention of Mrs. Calhoun reminds us that she is just back from the east coast where, at Governor's Island, N.Y., she visited her son and daughter-in-law, Lt. and Mrs. David Calhoun. In Philadelphia she was the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Mary Lou Calhoun Van DeWater.

* * *

But back to Saturday evening and some activity on the part of Chef's Cauldron members. This group, as most of you know, is composed of four couples who are particularly interested in preparing extra-special menus — and their plans for Saturday evening are not exceptions to the rule and regulations.

The club will be served a Russian dinner when they meet at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Norman Cromwell.

We hear that Mr. and Mrs. David Dow will be guests at the affair, but it still will be an eightsome group since one of the member couples, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Smith, are out of town. In addition to Dr. and Mrs. Cromwell, the regulars on hand will be Mr. and Mrs. George Holyoke and Mr. and Mrs. George Day.

Brides Book

Revealing plans this morning for her approaching marriage is Miss Carolyn May Rigg, who will become the bride of Doyle D. Kernes on Sunday, April 14.

The ceremony will be solemnized at 2 o'clock in the afternoon at the Second Baptist Church.

The bride-to-be, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Rigg, has named Miss Jane Antes as her maid of honor, and her bridesmaids will be Miss Diana Goldenstein and Miss Doris Woods.

Miss Karen Bauer of McCook, and Miss Janice Woelfle will light the candles, and the flower girl will be Miss Susan Laws. Michael Kapeller will be ringbearer.

Serving as best man will be David Rigg, brother of the bride-elect, and the corps of ushers will include Thomas Dormer, Donald Droud, James Pardubsky and Dean Piersol.

Also an April bride-elect is Miss Nelda Hall of Lincoln, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hall of Rising City, who has chosen Sunday, April 7, as the date for her marriage to Frank Hartwig.

The ceremony will be solemnized at the First Methodist Church in Rising City, and for her matron of honor, Miss Hall has named her sister, Mrs. Roger Hoffman of Fremont. Miss Patricia Hall of Rising City will attend her sister as bridesmaid.

Serving his brother as best man will be Fred Hartwig of Monroe, Mich., and seating the guests will be Don Kramer and Bob Kramer of Firth, and Donald Starkey.

We Hear That

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Keith announce the arrival of a a son, James Daro, on Wednesday, March 6, at Bryan Memorial Hospital. The baby's maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Louis Wynkoop, and his paternal grandparents are Dr. and Mrs. Quentin Q. Quay.

FUN NEWS IN SUBURBIA

MEADOW LANE

Boredom? What's that? It seems doubtful that any of our Suburban residents will ever have to dwell on the meaning of the word, for again, each of the Suburban areas is a beehive of social activity this week.

In fact, we may not get any farther than Meadow Lane this morning since this certainly seems to have been a busy place during the past few days.

Bridge, of course, is in the neighborhood news, and the latest rounds of the game were played last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stan Tony when Mrs. Tony entertained members of one of Meadow Lane's regular bridge clubs. This was the first March gathering for the dessert - and - bridge club members, and they'll be having another meeting later this month.

Those invited last evening included Mrs. Ed Eschler, Mrs. Curtiss Adams, Mrs. John Millet, Mrs. Meredith Brox, Mrs. James Krueger, Mrs. Ray Jones, and Mrs. William Maly.

Another busy place yesterday afternoon, was the A. J. Urbom household where several neighborhood seven and eight-year-olds were on hand to celebrate a birthday. That anniversary, of course, belonged to Jenie Urbom, and there were 12 young ladies at the Urbom home after school to help celebrate birthday number eight.

Also helping their sister celebrate, were the other small Urboms, Carol, Rick, and Randy.

And Jenie's birthday isn't over yet, for her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Don Brooke, are scheduled to arrive in Lincoln today, and more celebrating is planned for the weekend.

A very special reason for these late festivities is that Jenie's birth date is also that of her grandfather's, and therefore, there will be double reasons for the family celebration this weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Brooke will be returning to their home in Hastings on Sunday.

And while we're speaking of visitors, we should tell you that Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Smith and their children, Joleen and Jeff, will be busy this weekend preparing for guests who are to arrive on Tuesday.

Those Tuesday arrivals will be Mrs. Smith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Dunn, of Holyoke, Colo., and they will be spending a week in Lincoln.

A Meadow Lane resident who is to return to the neighborhood today after two weeks in Milwaukee, Wis., is Thomas Hawco. Mr. Hawco went to Milwaukee on Feb. 24, and during his stay has been attending a career training school there in conjunction with his Lincoln employment.

Entertaining "guests for a day" last Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Murphy and their daughter, Julie Ann. Their visitors were Mr. Murphy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dayton Murphy, who drove to Lincoln from their home in Nebraska City for the Sunday visit.

Very busy with a visitor and with visiting last weekend were Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kaelin and their children, Donnie, Debbie, Dixie, Diana, Denise, and Douglas.

On Friday, they entertained an overnight guest in Lincoln, Mr. Kaelin's father, L. J. Kaelin, of Ansley.

Saturday morning they left Lincoln for Grand Island and exchanged their role of the "visited" for one of the "visiting" as they spent the remainder of the weekend with Mrs. Kaelin's mother, Mrs. Beulah Ely.

Entertaining neighbors at an informal dinner party at their home last Saturday evening were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harrington. Their guests were Meadow Lane neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Sid Kitrell, Mr. and Mrs. John Howell, and Mr. and Mrs. Dan Conway.

Capt. and Mrs. Anthony C. Angone have set a definite moving date now, and they will be leaving Meadow Lane on March 19.

Immediately following their departure from Meadow Lane, the family will go to Chicago, Ill., where Capt. and Mrs. Angone and their children, James, Toni and Nicky, will spend Capt. Angone's 30 day leave with his mother, Mrs. Theresa Angone.

After the leave, Capt. Angone will go to Viet Nam, and Mrs. Angone and the children will remain in Chicago during the Captain's overseas service.

Dental Group

The regular meeting of the Nebraska chapter of American Dental Hygienists Association will be held next Tuesday evening in Omaha. The members will meet at 7 o'clock at the Mediterranean Restaurant.

CHATTER —in the— CORRIDOR

BY SANDIE LAW

Hi everyone! Well, this is the end of the first six weeks, so that means: 1, report cards on March 12; 2, only 12 more weeks left of school for sophs and juniors; and 3, 51½ days left for seniors at good ole' LN! Then thoughts would turn to warm weather except as I write this article I look outside and see wind blowing the snow into huge drifts.

Science Club officers for second semester are Gail Jeffery, president; Tom Marx, vice-president; Louise Ellis, secretary, and Linda Londberg, treasurer. Their sponsor is Ellis Jeffery.

Selected as Y-Teens officers are President Judy Stansbury and Secretary Terri Viquain.

Congratulations, Donna Axthelm, for being a weekly winner of the KLMS "I Like Lincoln" contest.

After taking the University of Nebraska Trigonometry examination in January, six LN students received college credit in Mathematics 14. Passing the test were Louise Ellis, Gail Jeffery, Melvin King, Albert Lickei, Bill Tharnish, and Mike Wylie. Congratulations!

Larry Johnson took first place in the American Legion Oratorical contest held at the Legion Club on March 1. Larry gave a 10 to 12 minute prepared oration on "A Citizen's Responsibility" and extemporaneous speech on "Apportion on the Constitution." Good luck, Larry in the State Finals on March 29 and 30 at Pius X.

The United Air Lines presented Miss Helen Dunlap, our foreign language teacher, with a 100,000-Mile Plaque. She was also presented with a 100,000-mile membership card, a 100,000-mile luggage tag, and a gold wings lapel pin. Her total flight mileage is now over 130,000 miles. Congratulations, Miss Dunlap!

Everyone was full of enthusiasm and vigor at our pep rally on Wednesday. Our pep club wore white gloves with their black sweaters while the football cheerleaders sitting in a V shape wore black gloves with their white sweaters. They also wore them that night at the District games.

This weekend, the ROCKET gymnastics team will participate in the State Meet at the Public Schools Activities Building. Come on boys! Let's bring home the STATE trophy for the second consecutive year!

Skiing seems to be the word around Lincoln Northeast instead of walking. At least it is for Dave Hutchison, Roger Cole, Jim Inness, and Mike Wright. Not too long ago, they went to Denver, Colorado to go skiing. Are they going again? Sure are! Maybe during spring vacation.

Guess that's it for this week. If ever you don't know what to do, try this: Keep your eye on the ball, your shoulder to the wheel, your ear to the ground — Now—try to work in that position!

See you next week!

Why Grow Old?

Start With These

Josephine Lowman

Experts have told me that one can learn to ski safely at any age if two rules are followed. Always have instruction first, and do not try the slopes which are too steep or too long for you. Be conservative!

Certainly, one can begin exercise at any age if a few rules are followed. First, ask your doctor. He will check your blood pressure and heart and will know if you have any unusual or abnormal conditions which might make exercise unsafe for you. Next, start in with easy exercises and do them only a few times at first, working up to more repetitions a day very gradually.

Many physicians allow walking, swimming and golf when more strenuous exercise is prohibited. However, any exercise can be strenuous, or light, depending on how you execute it and how long you exercise. Let your physician be the judge and then use your own good sense and stop before you are tired.

Here are two of my six introductory exercises.

1) Stand erect with your feet a comfortable distance apart and your hands on your hips. Rotate your trunk. Keep your hips as still as you can and make a complete circle with your body from the waist up.

If this makes you at all dizzy, move in one direction for one round and then in the opposite direction. Continue, alternating directions. It is important to do this exercise slowly.

2. Stand erect with your arms at your sides and FEET TOGETHER. Raise one arm upward by each ear. Keep the arms in place while you bend forward as far as you can. Be certain to keep the knees straight while you do this. Raise the trunk, reaching up as high as you can. Continue.

If you would like to have my six introductory exercises, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 25 to Josephine Lowman in care of The Lincoln Star, Lincoln, Nebraska.

TEST YOUR PLAY

1. You are declarer with the West hand at Four Spades.

	♠ A 10 9 7 ♥ K Q 3 ♦ 10 4 ♣ A K J 10
♠ Q J 8 3 ♥ 9 8 7 5 2 ♦ Q 7 ♣ Q 4	N W E S
	The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 ♣	Pass	1 ♥
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	4 ♠

North leads the two of diamonds and South cashes the A-K and returns the four of hearts. How would you play the hand?

2. You are declarer with the West hand at Six Diamonds. North leads the queen of hearts and continues with the jack, South playing the six and then the four. How would you play the hand?

	♠ A K 5 ♥ 3 ♦ A K 10 6 2 ♣ A K 10 3
♠ 9 7 4 3 ♥ K 8 5 2 ♦ Q J 9 ♣ Q J	N W E S

1. There is more to the play of this hand than meets the eye. Peculiarly enough, the proper play is the three of hearts on South's four. To play the queen or king is practically sure to lead to defeat.

Let's see why this is so. Having lost the first two tricks, West reasons that he cannot make the hand unless South has the king of spades. He plans to take the spade finesse and hopes South has the king. He has to credit South with that card because he cannot expect to make the contract otherwise.

Once declarer makes this assumption, it follows that North has the ace of hearts. It is inconceivable that South was dealt the A-K of diamonds which he has already played, the king of spades which he is assumed to have, and the ace of hearts as well. South certainly would have opened the bidding with all of these cards.

The only hope, therefore, is that South was dealt the J-10-x or J-10-x-x of hearts, in which case the ace of hearts will be forced out without wasting an honor. To play the king or queen is sure to lead to two heart losers and eventual defeat.

2. The problem is to avoid a spade loser. The best way of playing the hand is to try for a dummy reversal. Ruff the heart high and cash the J-9 of diamonds. If both opponents follow suit, ruff the eight of hearts, enter dummy with a club, and ruff the king of hearts. Now play a club to the queen, cash the queen of diamonds, discarding the five of spades, and the rest are yours.

If it turns out, after cashing the J-9, that the diamonds are divided 4-1, there is still a chance of making the hand by cashing four clubs and discarding two spades from dummy. If all goes well, this method of play will also succeed.

Plan Luncheon

The Lincoln PEO Round Table will meet for luncheon on Saturday at the YWCA. Mrs. Helen Wallace will preside at the business meeting, at which time officers will be elected.

Valparaiso Club Supper

The members of the Valparaiso Woman's Club will be hostesses on Saturday evening at a pancake supper to be held at St. Mary's Hall in Valparaiso.

Supper will be served from 5 o'clock at 8 o'clock.

Dear Abby

Invite Marriage Counselor To Dinner

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My wife is a good woman except for one thing. She is a lousy cook. Everything she makes tastes the same. She smokes while she cooks and ashes fall into the food. I am always finding something in my dinner that doesn't belong there. One night the supper is under-cooked and the next night it's burned. She hasn't cooked a good meal since I married her and it's been six years. Any suggestions?

INDIGESTION

DEAR INDIGESTION: Your problem didn't originate in the kitchen, and chances are it can't be solved by me in your mailbox. A woman who doesn't care enough about her husband to TRY to put a good meal in front of him needs more help than I can give her in a letter. If there is a marriage counselor in your area, invite him to dinner.

☆ ☆ ☆

DEAR ABBY: Will you please tell me how you can keep an old witch of a mother-in-law out of your house? This one has had four husbands. Buried one, divorced two, and drove the fourth one crazy. (No joking — he is in a mental institution.) She comes over every day, uninvited, and orders everybody around. She talks incessantly and criticizes everything and everybody. She has two other children who are lucky enough to live out of town, and they treat her like they don't even know she is alive. My husband tells me not to pay any attention to her. How can I accomplish this miracle? I think she needs psychiatric care.

VERY VERY NERVOUS

DEAR NERVOUS: Think of your mother-in-law as someone just two steps ahead of the man in the white coat and your resentment will turn to compassion and your anger to resignation. Do this for your own sanity, or you will beat her to the psychiatrist.

☆ ☆ ☆

DEAR ABBY: What, in your opinion, is a good line of work for a girl to get into if she is interested in getting a man?

ANXIOUS

DEAR ANXIOUS: Nursing — a man loves a girl who knows how to rub his back. Air line stewardess — where else can you find a man already strapped down?

☆ ☆ ☆

CONFIDENTIAL TO PAUL: Don't worry. If criticism had any real power to harm, the skunk would be extinct by now.

☆ ☆ ☆

Stop worrying. Write to Abby. For a personal reply enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Marigold Bill Blooms Again In Senate

Washington (UPI) — Mindful of winter's tiresome toll, Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, lover of flowers and flowery phrases, turned the rhetorical soil Thursday and reoffered his bill to make the sturdy marigold America's national flower.

But his softly-phrased description of the marigold's loveliness ran almost at once into a jarring suggestion from Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., top Republican on farm problems. He said the marigold is really an "alien."

Dirksen had to confess to the Senate that this was so. The marigold, he said, came originally from Mexico as a "sort of wild flower." Taken to Europe, it was developed further and finally brought to its full stature as a 3-season beauty by American nurserymen.

Flourish

"It will flourish on soil not blessed with fertility," Dirksen musically intoned. "It marches through spring, summer and autumn, until the frost of early winter takes its toll."

Interrupted Aiken: "It went to school in Europe — has it been naturalized?"

"Our nurserymen naturalized it," Dirksen replied. "They cultivated it into the thing of beauty it is."

Exceeded

At this point, Dirksen exceeded his limit of 3 minutes to hold the Senate floor. But Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield got the Illinois Republican an additional 15 minutes.

Aiken, concerned about more native candidates for a national flower, noted that Wisconsin has the violet as its state flower, and the rose and phlox rate high with others. The violet, said Dirksen, also is the official flower of Illinois — which violet he wasn't sure. But he did have this to add:

"My trouble with phlox is this — the rabbit. The rabbit is a discriminating animal who will pass up celery . . . and eat the phlox.

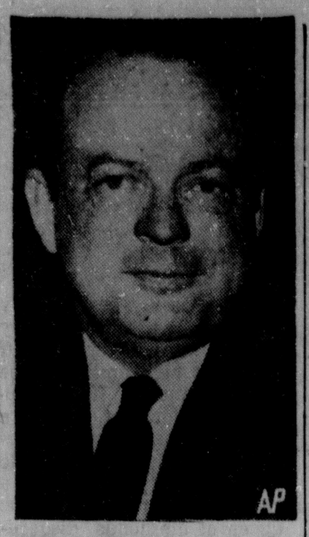
Speak Up

Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, presiding, was having trouble hearing all this. Dirksen and Aiken raised their voices.

Dirksen, Senate GOP leader, closed as he had opened, recalling Shelley's words, "If winter comes, can spring be far behind?" As comfort for senators tired of lingering wintry weather.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C. offered this postscript:

"If spring heard the words of the senator from Illinois, it will come hurrying to us on impatient feet."



New Post Reported

President Kennedy was reported Thursday to have decided on the appointment of Undersecretary of State George McGhee as ambassador to West Germany.

John Mason Heads Lincoln Lions Club

Lincoln attorney John C. Mason was elected president of the Lincoln Lions Club Thursday. William Rolfsmeyer was elected vice president.

Carrol (Cal) Stewart spoke to the group about his new book, "Ploesti."

Sen. Javits Commends Legislature

Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York has commended the Nebraska Legislature for its "generous action" in making Sir Winston Churchill a citizen of Nebraska.

Sen. Javits is a co-sponsor of a Senate resolution which would award United States citizenship to the British statesman.

In a letter to the Nebraska Legislature acknowledging receipt of a copy of the Churchill resolution adopted in Nebraska, Javits said "I am most pleased to know of Nebraska's generous action, particularly since it may be of assistance in overcoming a possible legal block to congressional action."

Suggestion had been voiced before Nebraska made Sir Winston a full citizen that Churchill would need to become a citizen of some state before the United States could grant honorary citizenship.

Find No New Incidents In Reformatory Probe

An investigation by Lancaster County Attorney Paul Douglas of the State Reformatory has failed to turn up any additional incidents on which criminal complaints can be filed.

"I find no evidence of any criminal conduct for which a criminal complaint should be filed with the exception of one incident concerning inmate Hodges and inmate Dusatko," Douglas said in a written report to Gov. Frank Morrison.

Charges have been filed against James Hodges, 23, in connection with the beating of another inmate, 19-year-old David Dusatko. Dusatko lost his eye as a result.

The governor asked Douglas to look into the situation at the Reformatory after newspaper reports of complaints about conditions there. State Institutions Director George Morris also held a hearing on the matter.

"The only infractions of the law that have been observed or discovered are those of numerous assaults by inmates on each other," Douglas wrote.

"Most of these assaults are of the nature that proper institutional disciplinary action would be sufficient, or are assaults whereby, because of the peculiarities of a penal institution, made it possible to discover the wrongdoers so that a criminal complaint could be filed."

Boys' Life Circulator Meets Scout Chieftans

Lloyd S. Eberhart, circulation director of Boys' Life Monthly Magazine published for all boys by the Boy Scouts of America, met with commissioners of Cornhusker Council Thursday evening at the YWCA where he discussed commissioner service to all Boy Scouting units.

John W. Hossack, council commissioner, said Eberhart was speaking to several Scouting groups during his two-day visit ending Friday.

Cassius Gains Draw In Poetry Battle With Beatniks

New York (AP)—When your eyes became accustomed to the gloom, you could make out the motto of the house, written on the back wall:

The further the urn, the larger the beard."

Gathered Thursday beneath the sign proclaiming this touching, if confusing, sentiment—and a drawing of what appeared to be a large parrot spanking the posterior of a naked lady—were an assortment of beatniks, sports writers, television types and Cassius Marcellus Clay, the self-proclaimed next heavyweight champion of the world.

The scene was the Bitter End in Greenwich Village, described by its manager as a coffee house-night club and by the civilians from the outside world as fair game for the health department. The lights were few and dim, the furniture ricketty, the stage backdrop a plain brick wall and the interior decoration might be described as Greenwich Village Precious.

Clay was there to indulge in a poetry battle with some of the Village's foremost beat poets, and to thump a tub or two for his 10-round battle with Doug Jones next Wednesday at Madison Square Garden.

The poetry battle was about a draw.

Cassius cringed at the poetic efforts of the beats. The beats cringed at the efforts of Cassius.

One cretin with straight black hair and about a pound of black goo on her face—consulted as an authentic beatnik—contended that Cassius' work had soul, but she turned out to be a researcher for a weekly news magazine and was disqualified as a judge.

Cassius arrived in the Village just as lunch—cole slaw and chicken wings—was being served.

He immediately launched into an impromptu press conference, during which he repeated his prediction that Jones would fall in 6, said he was saddened that all but one of the 7 New York newspapers was on strike and said he was the world's greatest fighter because "I'm the most outspoken, the boldest, the fastest and the prettiest."

Then the poetry contest got under way.

A gentleman weighing about 106, with a fine head of skin and a thriving beard, was the first challenger. His shoes were shined but his manuscript looked like he had wadded it up and used it for a doorstop.

He read: The Way of Emblems, or Sam the Gamlber Talks to a Losing Horse."

Cassius called him "about a 4 round poet."

A young lady in a black jumper and sagging black stockings, straight hair caught back in a fetching blue ribbon and thick horn-rimmed glasses, followed.

She read: "Cockfight under the Magnolias."

It was soon clear that roosters are big in Village poetry this season. They slipped into at least 3 of the beat efforts.

The reading went on, and Cassius went on cringing.

Finally, a living doll with baby blue eyes and about 6 hanks of dirty brown hair hanging down her back—"If you'd wash her off, she'd be beautiful," one spectator said — read an Ode to Cassius.

"Do you have a flag in your palm," it began.

Actually, Cassius held a copy of his poen in his palm, and soon he got up to read it.

It rhymed. It was the turn of the beats to squirm.

It was a little difficult for Cassius, since he had his tongue so firmly planted in his cheek, but he went through the poem reading twice.

Here's a sample stanza:

The word's been passed around that I'm a very charming guy,

The greatest fighter that ever lived and I'll gladly tell you why,

My secret is self-confidence, a champion at birth,

I'm lyrical, I'm fresh, I'm smart,

And my fists have proved my worth

The self-described "Noblest Roman of them All" then accepted his own congratulations, all around.

He enjoyed the whole thing hugely, especially when some one pointed out that he may be producing the first sellout fight crowd at the Garden in 13 years, next Wednesday.

"I write poems to build my fights," Cassius said. And then he threw back his un-Roman head and laughed:

"I'm only 21 and I have the world in this hand."

And he held his left fist aloft.

Oklahoma is in a familiar spot — first place — after the first day of action in the Big 8 Swimming Championships, but it was the surging Nebraska Cornhuskers who stole the early spotlight Thursday.

Perhaps inspired by their track brethren who last week won the Big 8 track title, the Scarlet tankmen fired up for 3 gold medals in 4 racing finals Thursday night at the Public Schools Activities Building pool.

But despite Nebraska's fine start, the Sooners — seeking their 10th straight title — move into today's second round with a slim point lead. Oklahoma piled up 35 points to 31 for Nebraska, with Iowa State (24), Kansas (22) and Colorado (17) giving chase. Kansas State is far arears with only 2 points.

It was a record-breaking day, too, with new marks being posted in all swimming events.

Nebraska was in on 2 of the records.

Husker Tom Chambers established a record of 4:58.1 in the 400-yard individual medley prelims —it's a new event this year — then came back in the finals to shave the mark to 4:57.5.

And the Scarlet 400-yard medley relay team composed of Bill Henry, Vern Bauers, Bill Fowles and Phil Swaim) left the field in posting a 3:47.3 victory. That shattered the 3:49.7 record set last year by Kansas.

Oklahoma was responsible for the other two records, but tough luck kayoed Sooner John Bernard after he zipped to a :22.6 in the 50 yard freestyle prelims, knocking a tenth of a second off the old record set by Eldon Ward of Kansas in 1961.

Bernard was felled by the flu bug and had to scratch from the finals.

That left it wide open and Husker Jeff Amsler came through with a rousing finish to edge Tony Wilson of Colorado for the 3rd NU gold medal of the evening.

Sooner Charles Schuette lived up to advance billing by winning the 500-yard freestyle — also a new event—in 5:12.8. Schuette's time in the finals lowered his own record of 5:23.6 set in the afternoon prelims.

Fritz Hagen of Iowa State successfully defended his one-meter diving crown by registering 363.55 points. Jim Cody of Oklahoma was second with 346.75, while Ron Marsh of Kansas was 3rd with 305.35.

Marsh's feat is perhaps unparalleled in swimming annals.

Wednesday night he fought in the semifinals of Chicago Golden Gloves tournament, losing a battering decision to eventual champion Harley Cooper of Omaha.

The rugged Jayhawk—also a football letterman, married and a Marine veteran—arrived in Lincoln from Chicago Thursday morning and entered the meet without benefit of sleep since Tuesday night.

Chambers' medley victory was accompanied by ear-shattering noise as the partisan gallery urged him on. The Husker moved into the lead at the 250-yard mark and won by half the length of the pool.

In the medley relay, backstroker Henry opened a slim lead, then breaststroker Bauers opened a sizeable gap on the second leg. Butterflyman Fowles increased the margin and freestyler Swaim poured it on to give the Huskers nearly a 5-second margin of victory.

Schuette was an easy winner in the 500, leading by two body lengths after 200 yards and pulling away steadily, finally beating Colorado's Mel McElroy by 6 seconds.

Today's program features afternoon (2:15 p.m.) preliminaries at PSAB in the 200-yard butterfly, 200-yard backstroke, 200-yard breaststroke, 200-yard freestyle and 200-yard individual medley. Finals in these events will be held at 8 p.m.

Preliminaries in 3-meter diving will start at 5:30 p.m., at the NU Coliseum pool.

Falls City Upsets Uni High

. . . TUTORS ELIMINATED FROM TOURNEY PICTURE

By CONDE SARGENT
Prep Sports Writer

Falls City's "Two Faces (from the) South" basketball team gunned itself into the State High School Basketball Tournament Thursday night.

The Tigers, led by the outside thrust of Benny Maze and Ernie Strasil, pushed Lincoln University to the sidelines, 68-62, in the finals of the Class B district at Nebraska Wesleyan.

Falls City is the first Class B team to earn a state berth for the big show next Thursday, Friday, and Saturday in Lincoln.

It was a mild upset, since Uni High had beaten Falls City, 67-58, at Falls City earlier in the season. But the Tutors didn't stub their toes. They were victims of some torrid casting.

Maze drilled in 27 points and Strasil 24 for 51 of the Falls City total. Most of their fielders — 19 of FC's 25—were originated from beyond 15 feet.

It all happened after Falls City missed 13 straight field attempts in the first quarter and proved two hot shooters could offset team balance.

But University High could get no more than a 5-point advantage during the Falls City cold spell and wound up leading by that margin at the end of the first quarter, 20-15.

Falls City's first quarter was typical of their two previous tourney games which were barely won.

Then Maze and Strasil opened up the attack to a pace Falls City fans claimed they were capable of.

Maze, a 6-0 senior, drilled home 5 straight from the outside and Strasil, 6-2 junior who arches his shots high like nobody else, added 3 supporting buckets.

Center Gary Schacht, outstanding at rebounding, was open for a pair of cripples for Falls City and the Tigers boomed to a 38-32 halftime lead.

Despite zealous efforts of George Zarins and Jim Butcher, coach Dale Snook's Lincoln team couldn't catch up.

Zarins, a left-handed senior who worked well along the baseline, matched Maze's 27-point output. Butcher had 16.

A fielder by each of the Lincoln leaders put the Tutors within 3 points near the end of the 3rd quarter but Maze drilled a jumper to end the quarter at 51-46.

Falls City achieved a 10-point lead with 4½ minutes left.

Uni High's press efforts, resulted in numerous steals but the Tutors couldn't get closer than 5 points.

Falls City's overall record is 17 victories and two losses. University High closed out 16-3.

Sugar Bowl Pays Record Proceeds

New Orleans (AP)— The Sugar Bowl announced Thursday a record payment of $350,000 to the Universities of Arkansas and Mississippi for playing football here last New Year's Day.

Marshall J. Davis, president of the New Orleans Mid-winter Sports Association, said checks of $175,000 were mailed to each school.

The schools don't get to keep it all — only $100,000 each. The rest goes to the respective conferences, the Southwest and the Southeastern.

Oklahoma State Favored In Big 8 Wrestling Meet

Norman, Okla. (AP) — The Big 8 Conference wrestling tournament gets under way here Friday and — as usual — Oklahoma State is expected to come out on top.

But the defending national champions lack their usual depth and could be in for a stiff challenge from Iowa State and possibly Oklahoma.

Iowa State beat Oklahoma in a dual match a week ago and pushed Oklahoma State to the limit earlier this season.

The Sooners suffered a crippling blow last weekend when defending national 137-pound champion Bill Carter was declared out of the meet by doctors.

Carter suffered a neck injury early in the season and reinjured it on a recent road trip.

Four defending conference champions will be in action. They are Mickey Martin, 130, and Wayne Baighman, 191, both of Oklahoma, and Oklahoma State wrestlers Mark McCracken, 123, and Phil Kinyon, 157. McCracken competed at 115 pounds last year. Both Martin and Baughman also are defending national champions.

Iowa State, which posted a 12-1 season record, has strong title contenders in Lowell Stewart, 115; Veryl Long, 157, and Virgil Carr, 167.

Other conference standouts are Dean Lahr, 177-pounder from Colorado; Mike Nissen, Nebraska's 123-pounder, and Joe Seay, Kansas State's 147-pounder.

Brookings, S.D. — A sizable contingent of Nebraska Wesleyan fans is expected to be on hand here tonight with hopes of watching the Plainsmen make a successful defense of their NCAA Midwest Regional tourney crown.

NWU will be trying to attain its 23rd win of the season at the expense of a tall and talented Michigan Tech club. The two square off at 7 p.m. in the tourney opener.

Host South Dakota State and Cornell College of Iowa meet in the second game of the evening.

Tournament officials expect between 600 and 750 Plainsmen rooters to make the northern trek — the largest delegation of the 3 visiting schools — and Brookings residents have been asked to help handle the overflow from commercial housing facilities.

4th Last Year

Wesleyan, whose 22-3 record is one of the top win-loss marks in the nation, went on to a 4th place finish in the national tournament last year after gaining the regional title.

Michigan Tech — which leaped from last to first place this year in its Northern State College Conference — provides the first obstacle to the NWU repeat plans.

The Huskies will be one of the many Plainsmen foes possessing a height advantage. Doug Schueneman, a 6-6 center and the Northern Conference scoring champion, has been a key factor in Tech's return to winning ways. Schueneman carries a 19.5 scoring average into the tournament.

Wesleyan will counter with Chet Paul, 6-5 junior pivotman, who leads the Plainsmen scorers with a 19.3 per game clip.

Record Breakers

With 23 records already broken in the course of the 1962-63 season, Wesleyan will have a shot at two more during regional play.

The season marks for field goals and total points are both well within reach. The Plainsmen need 17 field goals and 94 more points to top the standards notched by last year's squad.

Tourney festivities include a noon luncheon today for visiting coaches, athletic directors and meet officials and an awards banquet following the championship tilt Saturday night.

Big, Little Of Pro Rassling To Be Seen

The big and little of professional rassling will be featured at Pershing Auditorium Tuesday night.

Pat O'Connor, one of the biggest names in the sport, will be a main eventer, but the spotlight will fall on two newcomers who have attracted fans all over the midwest.

Making their first Lincoln appearance will be midget girl grapplers, Little Darling Dagmar, and Baby Cheryl.

Dagmar stands only 41 inches high and weighs 86 pounds, while Cheryl is 43 inches tall and weighs 88 pounds.

The two diminutive dynamos will tangle in a special event match on Promoter Jack Pesek's card.

O'Connor, the New Zealand Irishman, will take on Waldo Von Eric in the main event.

A big semifinal match is on tap, too, with The Rebel meeting Ray Gordon.

Opening the 8:30 p.m., show will be a match between Bobby Managoff and Guy Mitchell.

Aurora Over Crete, 55-49

. . . IN B DISTRICT

York —A hustling band of Huskies from Aurora put an end to Crete's hopes for a Class B state tournament berth here Thursday night in a district semifinal clash.

Coach Bill Kropp's Aurora quintet used an early scoring splurge, a full court press and a second half deliberate stall to dump the Cardinals, 55-49.

Aurora thus moves into the tourney showdown Saturday against the host Dukes of York. In an earlier meeting this year, York defeated Aurora 51-42, but since that time the Huskies have roared to 13 consecutive wins.

A poor first half showing ruined Crete in its bid for state laurels. Aurora jumped to a 12-3 first quarter lead, and at intermission had stretched the count to 34-16.

Then with victory in sight, Aurora played a keep-away contest in the second half. Crete managed to narrow the margin to 42-28 entering the stretch, but it was too little and too late.

John Miller paced the winners with 16, followed by John Ahlborg with 12, 8 of which came on that many consecutive successful free-throws in the final stanza.

Sophomore Leon Muff led Crete with 17 points. Lou Waltman added 11 and Roger Douglas contributed 10 in a losing cause.

Aurora now stands 14-4 for the season, while Crete finished with a 15-4 slate.

Polk Earns Repeat Trip In Class D

Milford — Defending Class D champion Polk defeated Beaver Crossing here Thursday night, 55-50, to earn its 3rd straight trip to the State Tournament.

Coach Jim Karloff's Cubs, winners of the Class C title two consecutive years, turned in a red-hot first half, then hung on to counter clutch points when Beaver Crossing came stroming from behind.

Max Kroger, 6-2 junior who played a key role in last year's title, was the whole show as the Cubs raced to a 38-24 halftime advantage.

Beaver Crossing, plagued by cold-shooting in the first half, managed only one shot before Kroger rebounded or blocked the shot time and again.

Kroger tallied 6 points in each of the first two periods and got his club's only 3 markers in the 3rd period.

Beaver Crossing applied a tough full court press and moved from a zone to a man-for-man defense to enable the second half comeback.

Kroger and Sundberg led Polk with 21 and 18 respectively. Wayne Miller paced the Beavers with 19. Larry Stutzman meshed 15.

Polk	19	19	3	14—55
Beaver Crossing	13	11	14	12—50

Winner's high—Max Kroger, 21; Loser's high—Wayne Miller, 19.

Tecumseh Gains 3rd Straight Trip To State Cage Tourney

. . . PAWNEE CITY FALLS, 60-57

Tecumseh advanced to the State Basketball Tournament for the 3rd straight year Thursday night by downing Pawnee City, 60-57 in a Class C playoff game at the Lincoln Northeast gym.

The T-Towners lead by 6 to 8 points through out the game and were never threatened until early in the final period.

In that last quarter, Pawnee City's Roger Peacock, and Bob Kennedy scored back to back baskets to tie the game at 45-all with 6:27 remaining.

Tecumseh's Rich Martin then hit two straight fielders to boost the Indians back to a 4-point cushion and ultimately ice the win.

Martin, hitting from outside with amazing accuracy, ended with 15 points to pace T-Town's balanced attack. Juniors Mike Kavanough and Gary Waring each added 14, and usual high scorer Chuck Lacey hit 13 points.

Pawnee City, which ends the season with a 14-8 record, was led by Max Martin's 12. Peacock contributed 11 as did Chuck Hall.

LeRoy Zentic has brought his Tecumseh tribe to the state cage carnival each year he has been there. T-Town will carry a 16-5 record into the tournament.

Undoubtedly the most fantastic shot of the game occurred in the final second. Putting the ball into play from beneath Tecumseh's goal, Pawnee City's Martin pivoted from about 10 feet from the top of the key and, baseball-style, tossed in a 60-foot basket.

Martin was the most surprised person in the gym.

Pawnee City	13	13	15	16—57
Tecumseh	19	13	13	15—60

Winner's high—Rich Martin, 15; Loser's high—Max Martin, 12.

David City, Madison To Class B District Finals

By GENE BUDIG
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Columbus — A torrid 4th quarter rally by David City Aquinas fell short Thursday night in district Class B play.

Jack Gilmore's cagers finally bowed to cross town rival David City, 67-62.

With 43 seconds left, Aquinas pulled within 3 points, 65-62.

However the winners then went into an effective stall.

Gunning David City was Jack Wolfe, a 5-10 guard, who seemed to thrive on the pressure. He hit 22 points.

Big Leonard Havlovic, the only Aquinas starter not retiring to the bench via fouls, scored 26 points.

Also instrumental in the David City cause was Fred Kobza, a 6-2 senior, who swept the boards with ease.

A small, but swift Madison team will meet David City in Friday night's battle over a ticket to Lincoln and the state basketball tournament.

In the opening game, Albion furnished Madison little opposition, losing 66-38.

Little John Koenig shot at will, scoring 20 points for the winners. The 5-6 guard also turned in a stellar floor performance.

Albion	9	10	10	9—38
Madison	11	13	18	24—66

Winners high: John Koenig, 20; Losers high: Larry Petersen and Roger Noble, 10.

David City	14	21	24	8—67
Aquinas	14	11	16	21—62

Winners high: Jack Wolfe, 22; losers high: Leonard Havlovic, 26.

AAU Official Hits Dual Sanctioning

. . . 'WOULD BRING CHAOS'

New York (AP)—"We cannot function with two heads—it would bring chaos," the secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union insisted Thursday in the face of mounting pressure for dual sanctioning of track and field meets.

"Remember, this is not strictly an AAU prerogative," Capt. Stephen Archer added. "It affects our entire international structure. The AAU has been designated as the sole sanctioning agent by the International Federation. If we try to veer from that, we're in trouble."

The controversy between the AAU and the U.S. Track and Field Federation has erupted again, with the AAU itself splitting on the question.

The track and field committee of the Southern Pacific AAU has asked the parent body to approve dual sanctioning in order that the Los Angeles Coliseum Relays May 17 not be penalized.

The relays have been sanctioned by the USTFF but not by the AAU.

W. R. Schroeder, a member of the Southern Pacific AAU committee, said the AAU should initiate action instead of waiting for Gen. Douglas MacArthur, the arbitrator of the dispute, to settle the problems.

"We haven't received the communication from the West Coast," Archer said, "But it sounds as if it would be in violation of all the directives of our executive committee.

"After all, under the MacArthur agreement, the USTFF was supposed to confine its sanctioning activities to closed meets involving athletes still doing some form of study."

The USTFF insists that it did not get this interpretation from the peace settlement earlier this year.

Shot putter Parry O'Brien was tossed into the middle of the fuss when he entered Saturday's Milwaukee Journal meet, sanctioned by the USTFF but not by the AAU.

O'Brien said he was forced to withdraw after being threatened by the AAU with ineligibility for the Pan-American Games and Olympics.

"I fail to see the logic of it," O'Brien said bitterly. "High school and college athletes will be competing unhindered. Graduation from college apparently brings a penalty. I feel sorry for the youngsters coming up — they're in the middle of a bad situation."

De Witt, Talmage Get Wins

. . . IN D SEMIFINALS

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Beatrice — Undefeated De Witt will tangle with Talmage Friday in one showdown for a Class D state tourney spot.

Coach Ron Joekel's Panthers pounced on ever-trying Steinauer, 55-44 in a virtual replay of last year's regional clash.

The win was De Witt's 18th straight since it dropped the 1962 state title to Polk.

Talmage out-tussled Filley, 45-39, but not as niftily as the score might indicate.

Eight winners' points came in the last 90 seconds, two on free throws after the buzzer.

Too much Tietjen — 19-point Doug, that is — was one key in the decision over Steinauer. More significant, however, was De Witt's team balance that saw Larry Wattjen and Jim Holtmeier add 14 and 12.

Coach Cleveland Jones' club leaned top-heavily on Bill Rinne's 6 feet of talent. Both his 20-point total and the Blue Jays' late bid were cut short, however, as fouls benched the senior stalwart the final 4:30.

Scrappy throughout, Steinauer tilted itself off balance with a 7-point second quarter that included a lone fielder. This showing, laid alongside De Witt's biggest quarter, spoiled the losers' only lead.

The Talmage - Filley affair turned into something of a scoring duel between the winners' Alvin Winkelhake and Filley's Ron Siefkes, the latter taking a one-point edge with his 20. Winklehake and Dennis Teten, both Talmage juniors, potted a pair of fielders each in the final two minutes.

Filley had looked very much a goner as the 4th period opened at 32-27, but in 5 minutes had closed to 35-all. Coach Gerry Olson's Talmage 5 had taken over after a slow opener by both clubs, but never built beyond a 10-point spread.

Friday night's windup between De Witt and Talmage will be at 7:30 p.m. The first-round decision left Steinauer with a 14-4 record, and Filley with 15-8.

DeWitt	8	18	16	13	—55
Steinauer	12	7	10	15	—44

Winners high: Doug Tietjen, 19; losers high: Bill Rinne, 20.

Talmage	6	15	11	13	—45
Filley	6	8	13	12	—39

Winners high: Alvin Winkelhake, 19; losers high: Ron Siefkes, 20.

Union Resistance Stiffens As French Crisis Grows

Paris, (AP)— Union resistance stiffened Thursday as a nationwide strike of France's nationalized coal industry moved toward crisis stage. Some factories closed for lack of fuel; others reported they were operating on emergency reserves.

The 3 major unions representing 200,000 coal miners ordered continuation of the strike for better wages and shorter hours despite a government plea to return to the pits. The strike began last Friday.

There were signs of growing labor unrest in other sectors of the economy as support for the miners built up among other unions.

This was the first major headon clash between President Charles de Gaulle's government and France's organized labor bloc. At stake was the government's prestige.

The coal mine unions demand an 11% wage boost and a work week cut from 46 to 40 hours. The government has offered the miners a 5.7% wage increase spread out over the next year.

Strike leaders say the miners will not go back to the pits until the government at least opens negotiations on the demands. The government says it will not discuss wages and hours until the miners go back to work. It has threatened stern measures if the miners do not obey a back-to-work draft order.

Two factories in the Marseille area closed down when coal reserves ran out. Some other textile, brick and paper factories reported they were on emergency reserves.

But the big government-owned gas and electricity and railroad industries were not immediately threatened by a coal shortage. The gas industry reported a 30-day supply. A spokesman for the railroads said only 25% of the nation's trains depend on coal for fuel.

Pressure from home owners for coal eased off with a sharp rise in temperatures.

Judge Visits, Acquits Defendant; Phobia Kept N.J. Man From Court

Fairview, N.J. (UPI) — A county judge traveled 10 miles Thursday to acquit a man of a bad check charge because the defendant has a phobia against travel.

Thomas Policastro, 40, tried for two years to make the 10 mile trip to Hackensack, the county seat, to answer the bogus charge.

But every time he reached the little ferry traffic circle —within sight of the Bergan County courthouse there—he froze and could go no farther.

Psychiatrists have testified he could die if he were forced to leave the familiar surroundings of Fairview.

Thursday, the court—judge, stenographer, clerks and attendants—came to Fairview to try the case against Policastro.

The shy, balding gas station owner was promptly acquitted of issuing a bogus $1,100 check.

Policastro broke into tears.

He told newsmen that his phobia developed after his discharge from the Army following World War II. During the war, he said, he traveled 100,000 miles —all within the domestic United States.

"When it first happened, I couldn't leave my house," he said. "I stayed home for months. Then gradually I began going away a block at a time."

Although he lives within sight of New York City — across the Hudson River—he hasn't been there.

Couldn't Move

He said he hasn't taken a vacation in 20 years because of the phobia. He said he couldn't move more than a few miles from his home without going to pieces.

He didn't show up when the bad check charges went before the grand jury—and the jury indicted him.

But in court—held in the Fairview municipal building —officials of the United National Bank of Cliffside Park acknowledged that they had made an error which led to the bad check charge.

Wasn't Told

Without telling him, the bank had taken money from Policastro's private account to cash checks issued by a gas station he was in the process of buying.

When a check issued to the Muller Fuel Co., Inc. of Secaucus bounced, the company initiated legal action against Policastro.

After 90 minutes of hearing testimony, Robert Diltz, assistant county prosecutor, asked Judge Benjamin P. Galanti to dismiss the charge. The judge quickly agreed.

Guard Helped Train Cubans, Says General

Oklahoma City (AP) — A retired Air Force general said Wednesday night about a dozen bomber pilots of the Alabama Air National Guard took leave or absence in 1961 to help train the Cuban invaders. Five of the American pilots were killed, he said.

Maj. Gen. David W. Hutchinson, now an oil man, said he believes one American Air Force jet fighter probably could have made the Bay of Pigs invasion successful.

Hutchinson said he was commanding general of the 9th Tactical Air Force at Shaw AFB, S.C., in 1961. He made his remarks in an interview.

Told of Invasion

Brig. Gen. G. Reed Doster, commanding general of the Alabama Air National Guard, told him of the impending invasion, Hutchinson said. The Alabama unit was under supervision of the 9th Air Force.

"He came to my office and asked if he and about a dozen of his B26 pilots could be given leave so they might go out of the country for 4 or 5 months," Hutchinson said, adding:

"General Doster said they'd been hired by the CIA (Central Intelligence Agency). General Doster and his men took leave of absence on civilian status."

One fighter pilot could have covered the B26s so they could have bombed the tanks which played a big part in smashing the invasion forces, Hutchinson said.

"No qualified military commander would think of sending unarmed B26s without air cover where there were jet fighter interceptors, and we had reasonable cause to believe the Cubans had jet fighters," he added.

"When General Doster got back, he saw me first before he talked to anybody," Hutchinson said.

"He was heart-broken. Five of his men had been killed, and all of their efforts went up in the air in a matter of minutes.

"General Doster was promised air support, and he didn't receive it."

Hutchinson said he feels sure Doster would like to tell a congressional investigating committee about the invasion, and added: "He's got plenty to tell them."

Ashley Unable To Get Damages For Bear Bite

Omaha (AP)— Federal District Judge Robert Van Pelt ruled Thursday that the federal government doesn't have to pay damages to Harry Ashley, 39, who was bitten by a black bear in Yellowstone Park in 1958.

Ashley, who ranches near Hay Springs, Neb., sought $20,000 in damages. He testified in a trial here last July that he not only did not "tease, molest or feed" the bear but he was asleep when he was bitten. Testimony showed that the Ashley car was stopped in a line of traffic as other cars halted so occupants could watch the bears. He said he was asleep in the front seat with his wife at the wheel of the car and that his elbow was in the bear's mouth when he awakened.

Judge Van Pelt pointed out that the Ashleys had been given a booklet warning of the danger of the bears when the Ashley car entered the park. The booklet warned tourists to keep their car windows rolled up while watching the black bears.

Top Catholics Open Justithe Campaigning

Catholic leaders of Lincoln parishes pledged $164,788 Thursday night at a dinner opening a drive to get Roman Catholic families to agree to tithing — the giving of 10% of income for the church and other charities.

The 800 men present will conduct citywide visits Sunday to secure "Justithe" agreements and then participated in a candle-lighting service in which they were blessed by Bishop James V. Casey and the priests.

Bishop Casey told the dinner meeting that the church's Vatican Council is a move "to bring the church up to date . . . The program of tithing has its part in this new era in the church."

Other speakers included Edward A. Becker, lay coordinator of the campaign; the Rt. Rev. John J. Flynn of St. Mary's Cathedral, area clerical chairman; the Rev. Conrad A. Altenbach of St. Mary's Parish, South Milwaukee, Wis., and the Very Rev. Peter F. Dunne, pastor of Sacred Heart Parish, Norfolk.

Army European Units To Receive Sergeant Rockets

Washington, (AP)—The Army soon will equip its units in Europe with their first Sergeant missiles, a rugged weapon more compact and accurate and quicker to fire than the Corporal missile it will replace.

The Defense Department announced Thursday that the first battalion of Sergeants will arrive there next month, with additional battalions taking over from Corporal units over the next several months.

The move is a major one in a series of steps to add muscle to the NATO ground forces and to provide a quicker, more flexible response to attack.

Stromsburg Takes Steps To Aid Aged

Stromsburg (AP) — The Stromsburg City Council has created a housing authority and planning board for the purpose of building 30 one-bedroom units for a non-profit community project to help retired elderly persons. Rents would range from $35 to $45 per month. Utilities would be furnished.

LOOSE TALK ABOUT U.S. SECRETS POKED

Washington (AP)— Excessive talk about U.S. intelligence secrets was denounced in a House speech Thursday by a Texas congressman who said it is "making us the laughing stock of the world."

"Officials in Moscow, Peking and Havana must applaud our stupidity in announcing publicly facts which they would gladly spend huge sums of money endeavoring to obtain," said Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex.

Mahon, 6-foot-2 chairman of the House Military Appropriations Subcommittee, said the Kennedy administration "has mistakenly allowed itself to be goaded into revealing information detrimental to our best interests."

Officers Quoted

He did not cite any specific instances but said:

"Every day some high ranking intelligence officer is quoted in the newspapers on some subject or another."

"These men are men who should neither be seen nor heard," he said. "A passion for anonymity is an integral part of their jobs."

"There is an intelligence gap," Mahon went on, and it is "in the intelligence of those who are daily revealing the secrets of the intelligence operations of the United States government."

Stop Loose Talk

Mahon, who has been handling defense secrets for more than two decades as a member of the military appropriations subcommittee, demanded an end to the loose talk which he said is doing "outrageous and intolerable" damage to U.S. intelligence efforts.

He said President Kennedy, Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, and House Speaker John McCormack, D-Mass., should get together and halt what he termed "the rapid erosion of our national intelligence effort."

He said the executive branch, the legislative branch, and Republicans and Democrats alike "must share the blame" for the present situation.

'Opry' Singer Dies In Crash

Nashville, Tenn. (UPI) — Jack Anglin of the "Grand Ole Opry" team "Johnny and Jack," was killed in an automobile crash near here Thursday, the 5th country music star to die in an accident within two days.

Four other nationally known opry stars, Hawkshaw Hawkins, Patsy Cline, Cowboy Copas and Randy Hughes, were killed in a plane crash near Camden Tuesday night.

Police said Anglin lost control of his car, ran off an embankment, struck a tree and came to a stop in a creek.

Anglin was alone at the time of the accident.

China Attacks U.S. Commies

Tokyo, (UPI) — Communist China Thursday attacked the American Communist Party for supporting Soviet policy on Cuba and accused it of willingness to "sing the praises of (President) Kennedy."

The Communist New China News Agency, monitored here, added the American party to its attacks on Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev and the foreign Communists who agree with his policy of peaceful coexistence.

Quoting an editorial in the Peking People's Daily, it charged that the American party, by criticizing the Chinese demands for a tough Communist stand in Cuba, "confounded right and wrong."

Guard To Survey Flooding Threats

Maj. Gen. Lyle Welch, Nebraska adjutant general, said his office will make an aerial survey to determine if there are any spring flood threats.

In the past several years, the National Guard has conducted Operation On Guard to fight spring floods.

The survey to be made is merely precautionary, Welch said.

He said he does not anticipate conditions like those of last spring because there is far less snow cover and most rivers are open to carry the spring thaw waters.

Somewhere around this time it is National Canned Salmon Week. If you are not celebrating anything else, have a few friends in. Drink to canned salmon. Have a ball.

Crush two cups of crackers. Mix with a quarter cup of cery, a pound ery. a pound can of sauerkraut, a cup of applesauce, a teaspoon of celery seed, a half teaspoon of ground mace. Make this into a mound on a greased baking pan and stand a pound and a half of frankfurters around it, joining the tops with toothpicks. Bake in an oven at 375 degrees for 35 minutes and serve 6 people.

☆ ☆ ☆

Will this make the 6 people happy? Will you be acclaimed as the most resourceful cook in the neighborhood?

I do not know. I DO know you will make the cracker people awfully happy.

I ran across this recipe on the back of a cracker box.

It is a way to get people to eat more crackers.

☆ ☆ ☆

When I was a boy, crackers were sold in bulk. They came in barrels. When you went to the store with your grandma, the grocer gave you one out of the barrel. They were delicious.

☆ ☆ ☆

This is also about time for National Peanut Week. The peanut people want you to eat more peanuts.

Do not have any unusual recipes for peanuts.

My recipe is you put them on the table. Eat one and say, "Now don't let me eat too many before dinner."

All of a sudden, the peanuts are gone.

"No one ever ate one peanut," said Alexander Bullwhack, the mid-century philosopher. This became known as "Bullwhack's Law". It is widely quoted in better saloons.

☆ ☆ ☆

The director of the station restaurant in Sverdlovsk, Russia, invented an automatic fryer that saved fat in frying pies. It saved so much, he was able to slip 400 rubles a month in his foxy pocket. He will be shot next month.

Anybody who serves fried pies ought to be shot anyway.

☆ ☆ ☆

The only dish I cannot eat is balut. Balut is served in the Philippines and is considered a delicacy. It is a duck egg brought almost to hatching and boiled.

Irving Hoffman, the blade of Broadway, ate one for me once. (In certain light, Irving cannot see. So he doesn't care what he eats.)

"Tastes like chow mein," he reported.

☆ ☆ ☆

This is the wine country of California. The long, green valley of grapes. It is an excellent thing to drink with meals. (I think I could even do a one-dish meal with cheese or crackers and frankfurters if you gave me a chilled bottle of Napa Reisling.)

I might even do balut.

(5) Exits shall be provided in accordance with Chapter 20.56"

Section 2. That Section 20.36.010 of the Lincoln Municipal Code be and it hereby is amended to read as follows:

"20.36.010. GENERAL (a) Application. The provision of this chapter shall apply only to dwelling houses of not more than two (2) stories to be used for the purpose of housing not more than two families or households living independently of each other, and to accessory buildings, if the provision in (e) or (f) below are clearly met.

(b) Definitions. The term "prefabricated" as used in this chapter shall mean floors, sidewalls, interior partitions, ceilings, roofs or any parts or portions of any such, which are built-up, assembled, or put together before being incorporated into the structure. Such prefabrication may consist of a series of panels, or other convenient units to be assembled to form the structure or part thereof.

(c) Purpose. The purpose of this chapter is to regulate the use of materials and establish methods of safe construction where any structure or portion thereof is wholly or partially prefabricated.

(d) Scope. Unless otherwise specifically stated herein, all prefabricated construction and all materials used therefor shall conform to all requirements of this Code, except that Sections 20.12.040, 20.35.040, 20.35.050, 20.35.060, 20.35.070, 20.42.050, 20.42.060, 20.42.070, and 20.42.080 shall not apply to prefabricated construction.

(e) Load. The vertical and horizontal load resisting properties of prefabricated construction shall be not less than those of construction for the same use under the excepted sections listed in (d) above, except for prefabricated construction meeting the requirements of (f) below.

(f) Load. When a basic load-carrying structural frame or system consisting of an assembly of structural components is used, an elevation and plan of the framing must be submitted with all dimensions and connection details shown, and the requirements under the appropriate sections of this code for the same materials must be met."

Section 3 That Section 20.40.030 of the Lincoln Municipal Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

"20.40.030. SPECIAL LOAD CONSIDERATION (a) Provisions shall be made in designing office floors for a load of two thousand pounds placed upon any space two and one-half feet square wherever this load upon an otherwise unloaded floor would produce stresses greater than those caused by a uniformly distributed load of fifty pounds per square foot.

(b) Corridors in dwellings shall be designed for not less than forty pounds per square foot.

(c) In designing floors to be used for industrial or commercial purposes the actual live load caused by the use to which the building or part of the building is to be put, shall be used in the design of such building or part thereof, and special provision shall be made for machine or apparatus loads when such machine or apparatus would cause a greater load than specified for such use in Section 20.40.040.

(d) Floors in office buildings and in other buildings subject to shifting of partitions without reference to arrangement of floor beams or girders shall be designed to support, in addition to other loads, a single partition of the type used in the building placed in any position.

(e) Public garages and commercial or industrial buildings in which loaded trucks are placed, used or stored shall have the floor systems designed to support a concentrated rear wheel load of a loaded truck placed in any possible position.

(f) Any panel point of the lower chord of roof trusses or any point of other primary structural members supporting roofs over garage and manufacturing floors shall be capable of carrying safely a suspended concentrated load of not less than 2000 pounds."

Section 4. That Section 20.40.050 of the Lincoln Municipal Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

"20.40.050. ROOF LOADS. Roofs having a rise of four (4) inches or less per foot of horizontal projection shall be designed for a vertical live load of thirty (30) pounds per square foot of horizontal projection applied to any or all slopes. The thirty (30) pounds per square foot of horizontal projection may be reduced one (1) pound per square foot for each one (1) inch increase in rise up to and including ten (10) inches per foot. A design live load of twenty (20) pounds per square foot of horizontal projection shall be used for all rises in excess of ten (10) inches per foot. The requirements of this section shall be in addition to the wind load specified in Section 20.40.070."

Section 5. That Section 20.40.070 of the Lincoln Municipal Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

"20.40.070. WIND PRESSURE. For purposes of design, the horizontal wind pressure upon all vertical plane windward surfaces of all buildings and structures shall be that shown in Table A below.

TABLE A

Height above average ground level (feet)	Less than 30	30 to 49	50 to 99	100 to 499	499 and over
Wind pressure (lbs. per sq. ft)	20	25	35	50	60

Exterior walls shall be designed and constructed to withstand the pressures specified in Table A. The pressures must be assumed as acting either inward or outward, whichever produces the greatest requirement.

Roofs or sections of roofs having a rise of six (6) inches or more per foot of horizontal projection shall be designed and constructed to withstand the pressures acting inward normal to the windwind surface only and equal to those specified in Table A for the mean height of the roof structure above the average ground level adjacent to the building. No inward pressures need be considered for slopes having a rise of less than six (6) inches per foot of horizontal projection.

Regardless of rise, all roofs or sections of roofs shall be designed and constructed to withstand pressures, acting outward normal to the surface, equal to 1.25 times those specified in Table A for the mean height of the roof structure above the average ground level adjacent to the building.

Cornices, overhanging eaves, and external solar shades shall be designed and constructed to withstand pressures equal to twice those specified in Table A, acting from any direction.

The wind pressure upon chimneys, sprinkler tanks, trussed towers, sky signs, outdoor display structures, or other similar exposed structures and their supports shall be taken as not less than 1.25 times those specified in Table A for the mean height of the structure above the average adjacent ground level, acting on the projected exposed area. Six-tens (6-10) of the projected exposed area of chimneys and circular tanks may be used in calculating the total pressures acting thereon."

Section 6. That Title 20 of the Lincoln Municipal Code is hereby amended by adding thereto a new section to be numbered Section 20.43.040, which shall read as follows:

"20.43.040. TILT-UP CONSTRUCTION. (a) Construction consisting of precast reinforced concrete wall panels tilted into position will be permitted for buildings of not more than two (2) stories, under the following requirements.

(b) All reinforced concrete, including all matters pertaining to its design, quality, and tests of materials entering into its composition, forms, mixing and placing, and details of construction shall meet or exceed in all respects all the requirements of "Building Code Requirements for Reinforced Concrete, ACI 318-56, adopted February 1956 by the American Concrete Institute, but with the exceptions and amendments of 20.43.020.

(C) Supporting pilasters or an independent structural frame must be provided for stabilizing the tilt-up panels, and for carrying and distributing the design live and dead loads."

Section 7. That Section 20.44.010 of the Lincoln Municipal Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

"20.44.010. STEEL. All structural steel work in any building or structure, including all matters pertaining to quality of materials, design, fabrication, erection, details of construction, etc., shall meet or exceed in all respects, all the requirements of 'American Institute of Steel Construction Specification for the Design, Fabrication and Erection of Structural Steel for Buildings' as adopted November 30, 1961, but with the following exceptions thereto."

Section 8. That Section 20.44.020 of the Lincoln Municipal Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

"20.44.020. EXCEPTION. The section number and title referred to in this section and shown in quotation marks is the section number and title in the American Institute of Steel Construction Specification referred to above. Section 1.4 Material—1.4.1 Structural Steel'. Structural members for field assembly, the members of pre-fabricated assemblies, and open web steel joists made from ASTM A36, A440, A441, A242 steels shall be clearly and permanently identified as to the type of steel. Structural members and joists not so identified will be considered as ASTM A36."

Section 9. That Title 20 of the Lincoln Municipal Code is hereby amended by adding thereto a new section to be numbered Section 20.44.021, which shall read as follows:

"20.44.021. OPEN WEB STEEL JOISTS. The Steel Joist Institute Standard Specifications for Open Web Steel Joists, J-Series (adopted May 30, 1961) and LA-Series (adopted July 1, 1961); and the Tentative Specifications for Open Web Steel Joists, H-Series (revised November 7, 1961) shall be accepted as recognized engineering practice for open web steel joist design when each joist carries permanent identification as to type of steel or steels, in accordance with Section 20.44.020 above."

Section 10. That Section 20.44.030 of the Lincoln Municipal Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

"20.44.030. LIGHT STEEL CONSTRUCTION. (a) General. The 'American Iron and Steel Institute Specification for the Design of Light Gage Cold-Formed Steel Structural Members — 1962 Edition' shall be accepted as recognized engineering practice for the design of light steel members, except as otherwise specifically provided in this code.

The following are the minimum thicknesses of metal permitted for various members of a structural frame of light gauge steel construction:

Bearing studs, floor and roof framing members — 18 gauge

Roof decks supported on ribs—26 gauge

All steel work, including welds and connections, except where entirely encased in concrete, shall be thoroughly cleaned and given one coat of acceptable metal protection well worked into the joints and open spaces.

(b) Stresses. The unit design stress in structural members of light-gauge steel shall not exceed twenty thousand (20,000) pounds per square inch unless clear and permanent identification is placed on the member as to the grade of steel.

(c) Construction Details. Steel studs or other steel supporting members used in the structural frame of light steel construction and steel joists shall be connected to the supporting beams, girders, foundations or other steel supporting members by arc or resistance welding, riveting, bolting or other approved methods. All such welds in light steel construction shall be made on two sides of two edges of each bearing in such a manner as to resist effectively the stresses developed. Resistance welding shall develop the full strength of the member welded.

Steel floor and roof members supported on masonry and reinforced concrete shall have end bearings at least four inches (4") in length and the ends of such members resting on masonry or reinforced concrete shall be provided with approved joist anchors throughly embedded therein.

Bearing plates, when required by design, shall be securely welded, bolted or riveted to such floor and roof members, studs or other supporting members.

Bearing studs or other vertical bearing members shall rest on a sole or plate having an effective width equal to the depth of such member and having a thickness of not less than fourteen (14) gauge but in no case less than that of the vertical member resting thereon unless such such vertical bearing member is thoroughly embedded in the concrete foundation. Such soles or plates shall be effectively anchored to the foundation and all splices and intersections shall develop the full strength of the members connected.

When bearing studs or other vertical bearing members are spliced, the full strength of such members shall be developed in the splice.

Where studs do not continue full length from one story through the next story above, a cap plate or steel member shall be provided on top of the lower story stud or a sill plate on the upper story. Such cap plate or sill plate shall be of sufficient strength to distribute adequately the loads from the upper story studs to the lower story studs.

All horizontal or diagonal ties or bracings in exterior walls and bearing partitions shall be effectively arc welded, bolted or riveted to the structural frame or effectively anchored to supporting masonry.

Where plumbing, heating or other pipes or conduits are placed in or partly in an exterior wall or bearing partition necessitating the cutting of soles or plates, bracing or structural members in said wall, such member shall be reinforced so as to provide sufficient strength to resist the stresses imposed thereon or proper provision shall be made to transfer such stresses to the points of support."

Section 11. That Title 20 of the Lincoln Municipal Code is hereby amended by adding thereto a new section to be numbered 20.44.050, which shall read as follows:

"20.44.050. ALUMINUM. All structural aluminum in any building or structure, including all matters pertaining to quality of materials, design, fabrication, erection, details of construction, etc., shall meet or exceed, in all respects, all the requirements of the American Society of Civil Engineers 'Specifications for Structures of Aluminum Alloy 6061-T6' or 'Specifications for Structures of Aluminum Alloy 2014-T6' as published in 1956."

Section 12. That Sections 20.36.010, 20.40.030, 20.40.050, 20.40.070, 20.44.010, 20.44.020 and 20.44.030 of the Lincoln Municipal Code as hitherto existing and all other ordinances and parts of ordinances in conflict herewith, be and they hereby are repealed.

Section 13. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and publication according to law.
